CONTINUES

When the 973 students strolled through the doors for the first day of school on August 22, they thought they were prepared for the year to follow.

Armed with pens, pencils, notebooks, and calculators, they believed that they were ready to face what lie ahead. Little did they know, it would take much more to survive than they could fit into their new bookbags.

Throughout the year, students were tested many times, not only with academic exams, but with a changing and sometimes difficult world. However, we all survived, and the adventure will always continue...

Studying hard for upcoming finals, Jon Torrenaga reviews his books for class.

Future journalists Barb Yaeger, Ericka Dreesen, Matt Gregory, Kim Jakich, Ray Gross, Corine Tachiris, Sheri Veldman, Allison Fase, Laura Fox, and Miki Banjura rest between competitions at Franklin College.

Getting in some extra work are, Josh Klein, Rusty Shouse, Jen Peo (seated), Nickole Kerns, Bill Prater, and Steve Marrocks (standing).

Preparing signs to decorate the halls for Homecoming, Tricia Stubblefield creates her own cheerful posters.

THE Adventure CONTINUES

The school year started off with confusion, the one-minute warning bell that everyone had become used to disappeared. Angry students threatened walk-outs to protest the new administration and their rules. However, in time students learned to like the new principal.

Mr. Hamilton's tragic accident pulled the entire student body together. Through special fundraisers such as candy sales, car washes, a carnival and other activities, students raised nine-thousand dollars to help cover his expenses.

Mrs. Slaby received national recognition for her work with the National Association of Biology Teachers. We lived through it all, and our adventure continued...

After an exciting win, Charleen Johnston goes a little wild while celebrating the victory.

Struggling against Billy Perkins, Jen Peo and Derek Bennett try to force his arm down in a lunchtime battle.

Going over yearbook layouts, editor Miki Banjura helps Tricia Cusak perfect her work

During Homecoming week, Mr. Darnell participates in "retro flashback" day to show his spirit and cheer on the team.

Trying to comfort Andrew Slatton after a hard fall, trainer Chris Woods speaks some words of encouragement.

While life here went on, the world also went through many changes. The whole world watched as O.J.'s Bronco cruised along the highway, and many people couldn't help but keep updated on the lengthy court case. The alternative rock nation took a blow with the news of Kurt Cobain's suicide. The U.S. pulled for Olympic figure skater, Nancy Kerrigan after injuries inflicted by Tonya Harding.

The baseball season ended early due to problems with contracts. The Republicans reclaimed the White House and Newt Gingrich became the new speaker of the house. Rockers for choice, Pearl Jam fought against Ticket Master to lower prices so even we could afford to see our favorite bands. It was a rough year, but the world keeps turning, and the adventure continues.

Explaining a difficult piece of music Jeremy Sterk gets the point across to Nick Leskiew.

Outside the library, Melissa Stamper and Kathy Patrick discuss their after school activities for the day.

Draping Coach Prochno's oak trees with 175 rolls of toilet paper was "No amateur job" for cross country runners.

During lunch, Tara Luedke and Kim VanTholen perform a balancing act with their spoons as friends Crystal Heffner, Jennie Evans, Kelly Kamminga, Keeley Troxel, and Alex Wenglzar look on.

Studying together in the gym, Josh Knudson and Erica Donowitz finish up some last minute assignments.

No Safety Net

There is more to school than just learning. A big part of the adventure takes place outside of the classroom.

Students stayed after hours for athletic and academic practice, extra studying, drama rehearsals, and many other activities. After school jobs also played a big part in students' lives.

These are the most important days of our lives. Adults also say students should make the best of the time they have.

Much of what makes these days so memorable is the activities in which students participate.

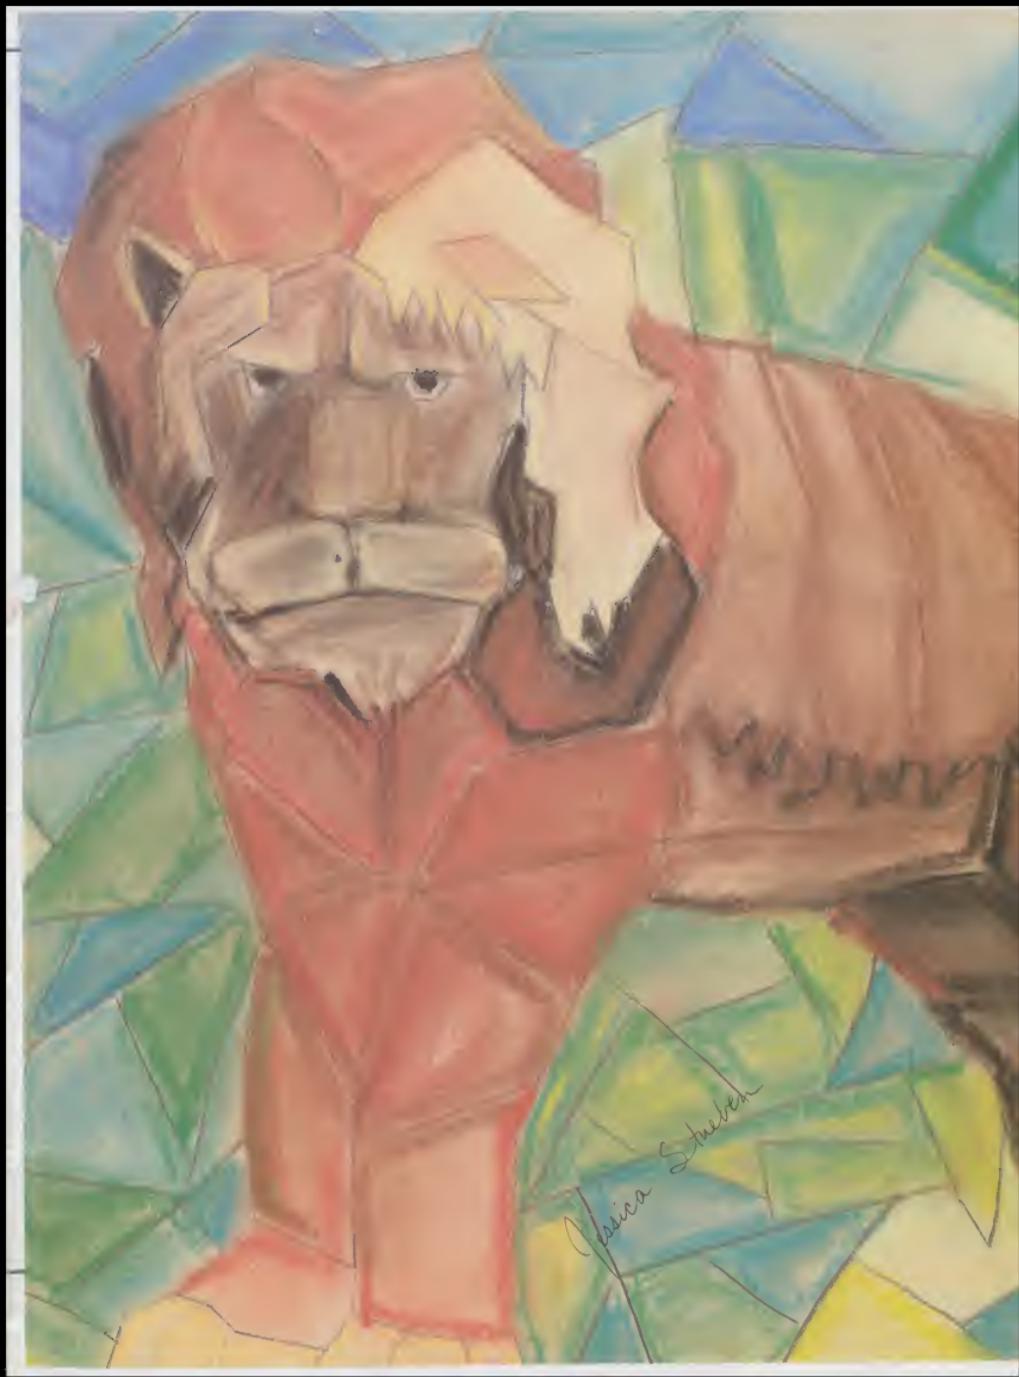

Examining old yearbooks at the Homecoming Carnival, Jen Hayes, Kelly Hepworth and Shauna Orich look into the past.

Creating artwork stems from many ideas including cubism. Jessica Stuchens used cubism to design a lion from the nation's #2 movie, "The Lion King."

Shining Through to Victory

Takin' Care of Business was a familiar phrase around Kougar country during Homecoming September 26-30. The week began with dressup days: Mr. Hamilton day, teacher dress like student and student like favorite teacher day, 70's day, jersey day, and the traditional red and white day.

The classes also had a classroom decorating contest. Mrs. Moolenaar's English class won the pizza party with their goal post and turf. There was also class competition such as the class hall decorations, dress up days, decorating a class car, and windows which were assigned to clubs. These hosted 60's flowers, Mickey Mouse and names of all the football players. Finally, the all time favorite was the pep session in which the honored spirit stick was once again dominated by the Senior class.

"Takin' Care of Business" was not only a Homecoming theme, but motto as they helped one of their own Mr. Mark Hamilton. Claus Nielsen, an exchange student from Denmark said, "My most memorable moment was the Homecoming pep session. The arrival of Mr. Hamilton was very touching."

Student body really pulled together and worked hard as a team to help raise money for the Hamilton family. Fund raisers included a car wash, and pork chops sales. Clubs also held a carnival after school before the powder puff game on Thursday night. All proceeds went to Mr. Hamilton.

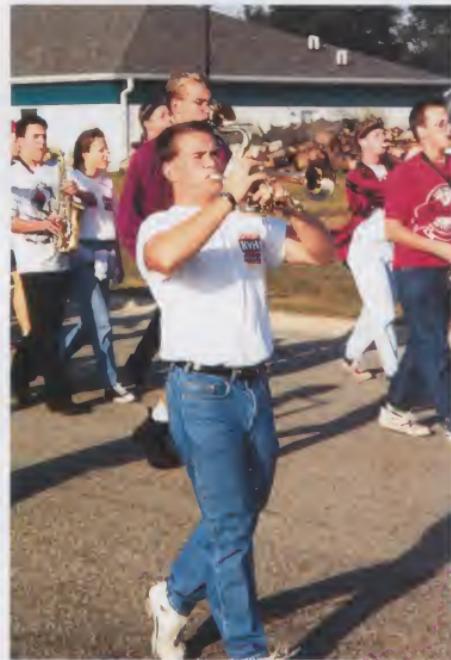

Senior Ellen Misch said, "Homecoming week was one of the best ones since I've been here. The school came together and showed that we can get along and when Mr. Hamilton came back, it touched us all."

The students and faculty raised over $9,000 plus a lot of cards and prayers for the Hamilton family.

Ben Duttlinger, a Senior football player summed it all up by saying, "With all of the social groups in our school, it was amazing how everybody pulled together to help Mr. Hamilton and through this at the pep session everyone became one class instead of four."

Feeling like a queen, Kelly Dunn is congratulated by former Homecoming queen, Jamie Jackson. Her excitement is passed on to escort David Andree and senior candidate Kari Myers.

Playing with all he's got, Junior Matt Gluth marches triumphantly through the Homecoming parade held Friday before the game.

Looking on with eager anticipation senior candidates, Andy Terborg, Dana Dorn, Kelly Dunn and Bonnie Nannenga await the crowning of the queen.

Strutting their stuff in front of the camera, Senior escorts, David Andree and Ben Turpin, prepare themselves for the final event.

Eagerly waiting their turn, seniors Jeff Sampson and Bonnie Nannenga pose for a quick picture before they begin the long anticipated walk across the football field.

Flying past Lowell's defensive line men Junior, Bruce Przyblyski, looks on for the perfect pass to score.

Crying tears of joy, the Varsity swim team is overwhelmed by the surprise return of the swim coach and biology teacher Mr. Hamilton at the Homecoming pep session.

Setting New Boundaries

Twenty five years of excellence was evident at the Homecoming '94 events. In addition to the crowning of the queen, members of the football team of '71 were honored, making it a true Homecoming.

From the annual pep session filled to capacity, to a carnival and parade this year was truly a big success. Even though the Cougars were not able to dominate their long time rivals Lowell, there were many victories already in place. Charlie Finney, Senior football captain said, "It was a memorable day filled with both happiness and sadness."

Kelly Dunn was named Homecoming queen and her escort was David Andree.

Dana Dorn, Senior candidate said, "I was really honored and excited that my class nominated me for the Homecoming court."

Kougars also held a carnival in which all the profits went toward helping the Hamilton family. The carnival consisted of games such as free throw game, a dunk tank, and bean bag toss. Food included subway sandwiches, pizza, snow cones, and cotton candy.

Jennifer Schurman, senior, said, "It felt good that everyone was working together to help Mr. Hamilton and to see him walk into the pep session made it all worthwhile."

Before the game all the clubs put on a parade in honor of the schools 25th anniversary. Fred Jones, who was honored with having the football field named after him for his excellence in teaching and coaching was also able to appear in the parade. This day was in honor of 25 years of coming home to Cougar Country.

Waiting with anticipation, Homecoming Queen, Kelly Dunn and escort David Andree, await the announcement of who will be queen.

Showing their enthusiasm for the Kougar football team, Freshman football coach, Mr. Grey and Boys Varsity asst. basketball and baseball coach, Mr. Orsburn get themselves peped up for the big game.

Filled with school spirit, seniors, Paul Zorka, Steve Caldwell, and Bill Dekock help in welcoming Mr. Hamilton back during a very emotional pep session.

Helping to get the crowd on their feet, Varsity Cheerleader, Lisa Albertson, keeps the Kougar spirits soaring high.

Donating their time to cook pork chops for a fund raiser, Seniors, Larry Evers, Steve Peterson, and Mr. Inman help raise money for the Hamilton family by selling pork chops.

Helping the Drama Club decorate their windows, Nick Leskiew, donates his time after school to show his Kougar spirit and dedication to his club.

Going For The Gold

Experience became a factor as the senior girls won in overtime against the juniors. Every year during Homecoming the Junior girls become the seniors biggest rivals for the annual Powder Puff game.

Only a few minutes into the game, the juniors handed off to Jennifer McAtee who ran 60 yards for the first touchdown and left the seniors down by seven points.

Senior, Ellen Misch said, "The juniors gave us some good competition, but we pulled together and worked as a team to get the job done."

Seniors came back full force with a touchdown by their half back, Gail Ooms. The game was very close and led to overtime. Referees gave them each one shot to score. The seniors did it with ease, but the juniors had a little trouble getting through the seniors defensive line.

Melissa Fraley, Senior, said, "I had a lot of fun with everyone, I was able to get to know my classmates better and make new friends."

The game was not only an experience, but one that will never be forgotten. Although very competitive at the beginning of the game, senior and junior girls learned that in order to have a good game they needed a little competition, but not so much that it starts to ruin friendships.

Senior, Shannon Pettit, said, "It was really a very rough game, but still a lot of fun and it's a great way to come together as a class."

Getting ready for the annual powder puff game, Seniors Gail Ooms, Staci Sytma, and Bonnie Nannenga express their excitement by wearing their victory crowns.

Rejoicing after a touchdown, juniors, Jennifer McAtee and Shanna Maple keep high spirits for a junior victory.

Activities create memories

Support came in all different shapes and sizes as Cougars united in a community effort to reinstate spirit in the corporation.

Parade, cheers, carnival, jackets, the shirts, car washes, and fundraisers highlighted the fall as students, faculty, alumni, and community boosted the spirit of KV.

Beneath it all smiles and friendships created memories. Yearbook, Art, Environmental, Speech, Academic Teams, Computer, Interact, Spirit, Foreign Language and FCA rented booths for the carnival to help raise money for Mr. Hamilton. In addition, the Environmental club donated a portion of their membership sales, the Academic Teams held a dance to help raise money, the Football players held a car wash, and the Swimmers held a swim-a-thon to raise money. FCA and the Varsity club sold T-shirts, the Special Education class sold buttons, and the Student Council held a can collection. Sunshine club teachers and staff gave donations, and the Demotte Junior Woman's Club donated $100. The FFA held a pork-chop sale to raise money.

In all, over $9,000 was raised to help Mr. Hamilton defray medical expenses from his accident.

Revving up the crowd, the Cheerleaders cross main street in the first annual homecoming parade.

Enjoying the carnival fun, Mr. Apple prepares to be dunked.

Enjoying Homecoming festivities, Fred Jones served as Grand Marshall of the first homecoming parade. Jones, after whom the football stadium is named, was football coach from 1953 to 1971.

“Love Will Keep Us Alive”

Raspberry, silver, and black balloons, old-fashioned streetlights, and a small replica of the Eifel Tower decorated the Porter County Expo Center in Valparaiso for more than 200 couples attending the May 20 Prom.

Prom attendants paid $45 for their tickets which included admittance, the guys' and girls' glasses, keychains, and dinner. Before the music started, dinner was served by Kelsey's Steak House: Chicken Kiev, baked potato, corn, salad, and for dessert, chocolate fluff.

After a few slow dances and even a few of those that were rigorous, the Prom court was called to walk through the Eifel Tower. Selected to reign as king and queen were Dan Kosek and Jen Nommenson. Prince and Princess were James Broyles and Shelly Recker. About being crowned, Queen Jen Nommenson said, “I will never forget when Dan and I were crowned King and Queen. It was a very exciting moment.”

Many of the students who attended Prom really enjoyed it. “It was a memorable night filled with lots of laughter and friends!” said Johanne Jarvis. Tiffany Bell agreed, “It was a lot of fun to be with my friends at Prom. The decorations were beautiful and the music was great.”

The day after Prom found many couples spending time together at many popular places such as Great America, Indiana Beach, the Dunes, Turkey Run, or the movies. Wherever the couples went after Prom, it was definitely one of the most memorable moments of their lives.

Sharing a special moment, Vince Collins and Jen Hendricks slowly dance to the theme song.

Before getting wild on the dance floor, Jen Schoon, Megan Hartzler, and Terry Grover discuss where they will go after prom.

Waiting for the next danceable song, Bonnie Nannenga talks to her friends about her date.

Prince James Broyles and Princess Shelly Recker dance together under the light of the miniature Eifel Tower.

While their dates powder their faces, the ladies continue. Charly Finney and Claus Nielsen enjoy the music.

"Yes, you may have this dance," says Senior Miki Banjura, dressed in a new interesting Prom fashion.

The thrill of being named Queen and King of prom is evident on the beaming faces of Jen Normmenson and Dan Koselke.

Grads look back

Taking the final leap out of adolescence and into the world of opportunity. This is what 207 of Kankakee Valley's finest students did on June 4.

Valedictorian was Sarah Boone, Salutatorian was Jen Yankey. Class motto was "Some succeed because they are destined to, but most succeed because they are determined to." Class flower was the red rose and their colors were crimson/ebonysilver. Sponsors were Pat Price and Kristi Slaby. Speaker was class president, Kevin Silverthorne.

On accomplishing 115 months of school since Kindergarten they were able to pull the school together by raising over $10,000 for Mr. Hamilton, and put on fund raisers for Andrea Hyatt and Eric Ramage.

Seniors finished 2,295 days, or 16,065 hours, or 963,900 min., or 57,834,000 seconds, of their total school career.

By the time they finished their Senior year, the average student clocked nearly 3,175,200 miles of driving since their Sophomore year.

The class of '95 was very unique. It was one of the most closely knit classes. Although they had their cliques, they weren't afraid to join another group. This class managed to make it through many difficult times: the new administration and the school fire are just two, but they pulled together and proved that friendship and love do make the world go around and without it they would have gone nowhere.

Graduating with honors, Jennifer Yankey, Salutatorian, and Samantha Boone, Valedictorian, stand proud of their achievements.

A Dangerous Thing

Whether trying to finish their Algebra homework during lunch or sprinting to Chemistry after the one-minute warning bell rings, students discovered how to deal with the learning process.

While A.P. English students frantically finished up their novel analyses, Chemistry classes made candy canes for Christmas. Though minds may wander while supposedly taking notes, most of the students kept their thoughts on the work at hand. Some students became skilled at typing or drafting while others learned the basics of psychology. From writing reports for government class to dressing up for spirit week, students strived to do their best, and showed that they had what it takes to continue the adventure.

Mr. Post's economic class members Jen Yankee, Staci Davidson, Mandy Apple, Samantha Boone, Amy Howard, Brian Misch, Kevin Silverthorn, Margaret Strain, Kari Myers, and Joy Mervosh won first place in St. Joseph's College's Economics Day competition.

B usiness area teaches “Hands On” Curriculum

In Business classes, learning is hands on. From keyboarding classes to the Intro to Business field trip in Chicago, students applied their book knowledge to real situations. “The Chicago Board of Trades trip was really boring. They overlooked the visitor’s area and we were rushed through,” said one sophomore. Studying the stock market was just one useful project.

Throughout the business program students were encouraged to consume, to spend wisely, to save their money, and to balance their checkbook. Teachers also discussed the United States’ place in the global economy. According to Mrs. Jeffries, “There are not any hard projects in business, but some of the students find it difficult to do the business projects.” Words per minute, stock market projects and accounting are just a few of the awards business teachers gave students. They also selected the following students as students of the month: Jenny Prosser, Kathy Buche, Shannon Sipkema, Mike Nannenga, Kathy Patrick, Katie Deardorff, Jennifer McAtee, Kari Myers, and Karin Haan.

Graduation awards included Ami O’Brien, Kari Myers, Kristi DeVries, Misty Mattingly, Chrissy Castillo and Kathy Patrick.

In addition to winning the DeMotte Jr. Women's Club scholarship, Kari Myers earned an accounting award.

In accounting students are taught the importance of the checks and balance system. On club picture day the atmosphere for Candace Stotts, Danielle Pierson, Jamie Moore, and Ronald C. Cimroch III, Shannon Pettit, Renee Zwinklis and Misty Mattingly is a little relaxed.

Creative Students Enlighten Classics

What a difference a semester makes? Each semester students bring a fresh approach to the same four novels enlightening them and bringing stories and characters to life. In novels, students read Tolkien's The Hobbit, Orwell's 1984, Thomas Hardy's Far from the Madding Crowd, and Faulkner's As I Lay Dying.

In Freshman English, they were enlightened with a fourteenth century story in which the characters fake their deaths, Romeo and Juliet. While in freshman grammar they learned the basic parts of speech. They also read To Kill A Mockingbird which tells of the unforgettable childhood in a sleepy southern town. They also read Great Expectations which tells of a boy named Pip and his life.

In Sophomore English, they studied about Wang Lung in the Good Earth, read The Pearl, and gave a presentation on a poem which the students broke down into different parts of literature. In grammar, they were diagramming sentences. While reading The Tragedy of Julius Caesar, the students were required to recite Anthony's Funeral speech.

Juniors read out loud and watched the movie for Our Town. They studied Mark Twain's boy hero and a runaway slave, Jim, who form a classic friendship while rafting down the nineteenth century Mississippi River in The Adventure of Huckleberry Finn.

In Senior English, they read Shakespeare's play The Tempest, Sir Gawain, and Weathering Heights. To help them learn in Mr. Harper's class, they played basketball. "Mr. Harper likes to apply the stories of Old English to his personal life as well as to the life of the students," said Gail Ooms and Tim Jones.

When asked what they had accomplished in four years of English Bryan Niketh said, "In my first three years, I have accomplished only the basics of English. Now, being in Mr. Harper's class, I feel as if my English academics have been taken to new heights. In his class I've learned not only about English, but life itself." Claus Nielsen replied, "This last year of English, has definitely been the best year of them all. I've learned to speak out and made it sound halfway intelligent. This however has reached its height in Mr. Harper's class, where I feel smart. I also have learned valuable lessons of life through the wonderful universe of Shakespeare masterpieces!"

Dan Kosek and Joyce Woolwine had this to say about what they accomplished in four years of English, "I learned about Shakespeare novels and epics and did poetry, and I learned a lot about movie scenes and plays in Creative Arts Literature."

S tudents capture life with pen, ink; oils

"Cardboard, more cardboard" was the cry as art students spent two weeks creating art patterned after David Smith, a U.S. sculpturist. With the effect of technology on the daily life of the artists, students created robots, home computer centers, skyscrapers, and a stop light. Other projects that the students designed and constructed were an original guitar, a popsicle sculpture that repeated one shape, several poster designs, and a self portrait.

One of the projects that art students were required to do, was to go down to the library and get a book of art and reproduce the work of art in the artist's style. Then there was a one page paper that was to be written about who the artist was, where they were from, what style the artist had, what media he/she worked in, and what the artist's topic of interest was and why.

Twenty-eight works of art were sent to the Regional High School Art Exhibition at Carnegie Center in Rensselaer. Another art show that the art classes entered was the New Artists of Greater Lafayette Museum of Art. Amy Stepanek, Tom Maxfield, Misty Oreutt, Michelle Kostecka, and Lena Mityaeva all got a participation award. Randy Allen's art work was the only one accepted by this show. This was selected out of three hundred entries.

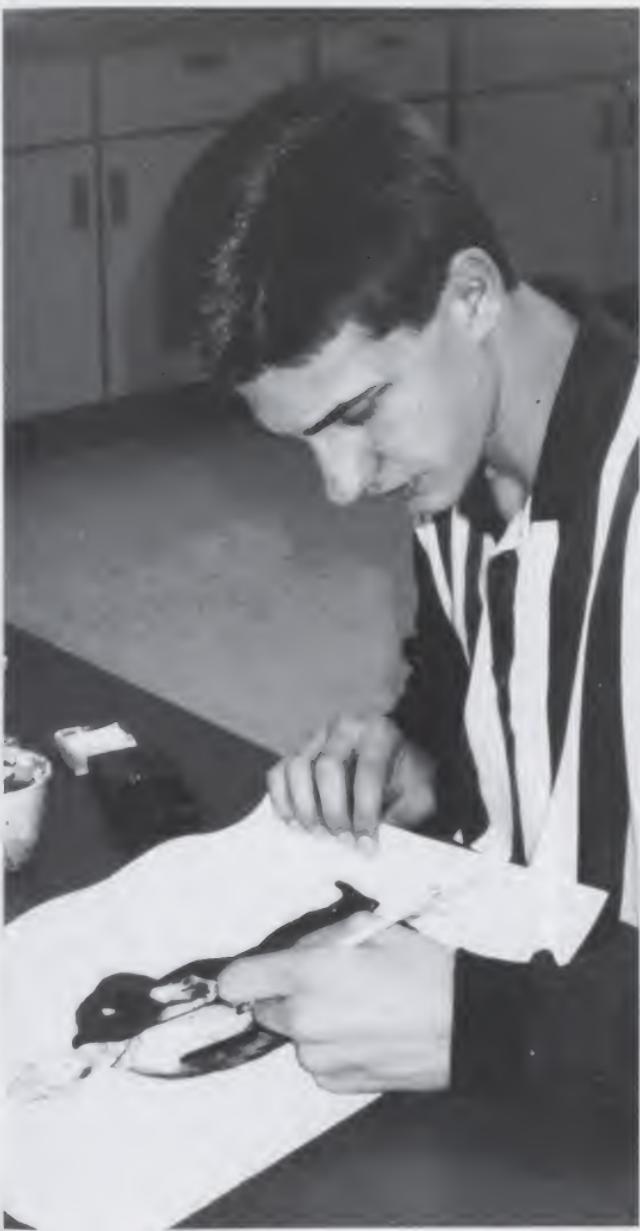

Painting one of her many pictures is Amy Brice.

Education shows Positive results

"Joining band was one of the best things I've done. It's a lot of hard work, but the results pay off."—Amy Chester

Concert band performed their first concert on December 12 and carried the concert season through to June 4 when they performed at graduation. During the concert season, they performed and competed at ISSMA and received a Division II.

In April they traveled to Ohio to perform in the Kings Island Festival of Bands Contest in which they received a Division I. "In recent years, we've had some very lean times. With the start of this year, we're developing not only higher member numbers, but also our performance abilities," said band director Mr. McCarthy.

Added to the music department was a strings class with director Mr. Meng. The orchestra competed at contest and received a Division II. "I was really excited because it gave me a chance to play violin," said Christy Sanders.

Twenty-eight students attended district solo/ensemble contest. Fifteen received a Division I and 18 received a Division II. Eight of those students were able to go on and compete at the state contest level. Six received a division II and two received a division I. When asked, Val Williams said, "I felt privileged to be able to go down to state contest. I worked hard, and I was happy with my results."

At the annual spring concert, the concert band performed Light Eternal and received a standing ovation for their great performance.

"Getting a new director was rough at first, but the marching season turned out to be the best in four years."

Barb Yaeger.

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat was the theme of the marching band and guard program. Their season began late because of a change in directors. The previous director resigned and Mr. McCarthy took over. When all of the practices and performances were considered the band and guard had a busy schedule. They performed at all of the varsity football games. In addition to that, they performed at several parades. These included the Touch of Dutch Parade in DeMotte, the Popcorn Festival in Valparaiso, and the Columbus Day Parade in Chicago. Marching band and guard also participated in three competitions. They earned third place at the Chesterton Invitational, fifth place at the Highland field show and they received a division two rating at the ISSMA District Contest.

"The marching season was primarily a time of rebuilding. With a new band director, we had to relearn everything in a matter of weeks. Everybody ended up working hard, and we pulled our marching show together in a snap," said Jed Gapp.

"Marching guard was very confusing this year. We had two directors, but we pulled through with an excellent season. I just want to say that I am proud of the girls who participated this year," said captain Nichole Walstra.

Winterguard show was, "On Bended Knee," by Boyz to Men. The show was written by Nichole Walstra, Aimee Beougher, Catherine Grube, and Michelle Smith. The guard competed at the ISSMA district contest and earned a first place rating. All of the girls also competed in solo performances and rated really well.

"Everyone worked hard and put a lot of time and effort into the show. It was a success with the help of Mrs. McCarthy," said Michelle Smith.

Singing out with pride

To the choir students, choir is more than just singing. These students spent a lot of time out of school singing for the community. The swing choir also spent time working on dance steps. They sang at Celebration Station, and at Holly's Restaurant. They visited nursing homes and also the DeMotte and Wheatfield Elementary schools. They have also gone to competitions during the year.

While swing choir was busy so were the other choir classes. Concert choir went to the choral fest with swing choir. Also, concert choir competed at a contest with treble choir.

This group of students had a harder time than usual because they had to work around the fire. For two weeks the choir classes were held in the cafeteria. They had to use the old piano and dance around tables for practice before the choral fest. Through all their work and dedication these students proved it takes more than a good voice but also hard work and determination.

There were auditions for the 1995-96 Indiana All State Choir on May 13. Students who were selected were Laine Hamstra, Jason Bakker, Keri Spurgeon, Kendra DeVries, and Sara Kreisher. These students will sing against other students in the area. In order to be chosen one must have scored high in the following: tone, intonation, diction, technique, and interpretation. Outstanding members of choir also received awards for their extra effort and surpassing ability. Awards went to Treble Choir: Kendra DeVries, Sara Kreisher. Concert Choir: Amanda Apple. Swing Choir: Kathy Bueche.

E xperience opens travelers' Gateway to new adventure

German paid off for third year student Ericka Dressen who was selected to attend a seven-week honors program in Germany. Also chosen to go to a foreign country was Jessica Stueben who was selected to spend seven weeks in France.

Third year German students did some skits including "Old McDonald," and "Bingo." "Taking German was a great chance to use your head and have fun, too," said Stephanie Barton. German students also had the opportunity to travel to Germany with Mrs. Masten.

First year French students ate a typical French breakfast and learned basic vocabulary. They applied French vocabulary to a simulated plane ride in which students ordered food and asked for the conveniences. Third year classes wrote journals and participated in classroom discussion. "I like French because it is different every day. The games break up the monotony of the school day," said Valerie Tachtris.

Second year Spanish classes created posters for extra credit. "I think Spanish is fun because I like the words. A lot of the times it's hard to learn, but it's lots of fun to use it every day," said Angelee Abbring.

There was some pressure on third and fourth year students who took placement tests to see if they could become exchange students in Spain, France, and Germany. Students who qualified to take these tests were Ericka Dressen, Jessica Stueben, Jeremy Oreutt, and Katherine Kucharik. Foreign language classes were moved due to the fire on March 1.

“The fire basically displaced us for awhile but it didn't really effect our work. I wish I could be in our old room, but until it's cleaned, where we're at is where we're going to stay,” said Jessica Stueben.

Coming next: Our third year students in Old McDonald are Katherine Kucharik, Amy Wiers, Kara Zygmunt, and Angela Karch in Germany.

During their independent study time, Brook Kozak and Brook Spurgan go over labeling a map of the regions of France.

Deciding what a person should take with her to France was just one assignment first year student Andi Rust did in order to apply her French vocabulary.

Explaining what they would take on a vacation to France led Jennifer Peo and Chris Cavanaugh to draw interesting conclusions on how different males and females travel.

Energetic toddlers mix With personal "buddies"

What do you get when you mix 23 toddlers and 32 teens?

Vocational Child Care, which offers students the real life trials and tribulations of running a day care center here at school. "This class is one of the most real life experiences teens can face with toddlers," said Shannon Evans, one of the "high school buddies" in the class.

Doubling the care center's size over the past year, from last year's two hour, 15 children class to a four hour, 23 child class is only one of the many achievements that this unique program has accomplished. Also parents were required to pay a fee for the care provided. The profits made were all recycled right back to the children in the form of snacks, supplies, games, and toys.

Some advantages for the teens in the program were hands-on experience, a double credit and a fun, interesting way to learn the basics of child care. Not only did the program benefit the students, but it provided a great, inexpensive service to the community. Students who volunteered took pride in seeing the smiles on the kids' faces, and their rewards come from the children.

Besides the sitting and learning service, this class was designed to help the children mature. Even when the kids got a bit wild, would not listen, or refused to stop throwing things, there were a few simple discipline guidelines that the care givers were required to follow. They were the goals of the program:

1. To promote independence.
2. To promote a positive self attitude.
3. To promote problem solving skills.
4. To promote muscle coordination.
5. To promote self control.
6. To promote language skills.
7. To promote social skills.

When asked how the students and children reached their goals, Mrs. Schroeder said, "The teens made up care packs which were to teach a lesson that elementary students will understand." Some of the lessons that were taught to the toddlers were computers, with the help of Mr. Hines, stranger safety, tooth care, the four food groups, water safety, and fire safety.

In addition to Vocational Child Care, students could also learn about food nutrition, married life, and the way children develop.

Helping Jennifer Hines do a word find, Jennifer Coffey explains the way words are used in sentences

“The class was great. I got to learn a lot about kids and to experience something new,” said Marika Vuorinen.

Playing with the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are Amber Hansen, Marika Vuorinen, Tyler Buchaman, and Robert Belt.

Working on the toddlers Valentine folders and registration are Ellen Misch and Shelly Davis.

S tudents calculate win at state competition

Application was the focus of the math department's varied program. From Technical Math to Advanced Calculus, students learned to apply their theories to actual calculations. Algebra is the language of mathematics and the understanding of algebraic representations. It is also the prerequisite to further work in all mathematical subjects.

Discrete Math is the study of the mathematical properties of sets and systems that have only a finite number of elements. In this course students covered Data Analysis, Functions, Probability, Statistics, and Matrix Algebra. Advanced Topics which is now called Pre-Calculus covers Trigonometry, Analytic Geometry, and Pre-Calculus. Students also studied several higher mathematical topics explicitly designed for the student planning to study Calculus.

AP Calculus provides students with the tools to study changes in a quantitative way. It's a course to study limits, derivatives, and integral functions. Calculus helped students to solve problems involving motion, rate of growth, maximum and minimum values, area and volume. Technical Math is designed to prepare the student for the study of algebra and Geometry. It has an emphasis on problem-solving and application of math skills. In Technical Math, the students worked together in small groups to solve problems. They discussed their answers with the class and took tests over the material.

In Advanced Algebra, students were working with the Quadratic Formula, and completing the square technique as well as how to solve equations with these techniques. Advanced Algebra has an emphasis on learning equation solving and its applications to find the solution to real world problems. In Geometry, the students worked with different geometric shapes to make the ornaments that were placed on the Christmas tree located by the main entrance. They used coordinate graphing and transformations to examine important geometric concepts.

For Tom Barlog math paid off with a silver medal at The State Decathlon in Indianapolis. "Even though I don't like to do any school related activities, Decathlon was lots of fun. I enjoyed it," said Tom Barlog. Kevin Kamminga also went to the State Decathlon in Indianapolis where he received a bronze medal in math.

Coming to class early is the key for Ryan Myers who uses the extra time to complete his assignment.

Paying attention to Mrs. Roberts, Rosie Kanemoto, Jennifer Trock, Todd Moelenaar, and Catherine Grube strive to understand Advanced Algebra.

Calculating linear equations. Aimee Beougher applies essential algebraic equations in Mr. Hostetler's Advanced Algebra class.

Taking notes on the Pythagorean Theory. Jill Garvey discusses the hypotenuse of the right triangle.

Establishing a strong mathematical base is important to college bound honors student Amy Stepanek. Calculus, taught by Mr. Orshurn, was just one of the advanced college prep math courses.

Good Start In Fitness

Teamwork topped the charts as freshmen dribbled, passed and shot through their favorite quarter of physical education.

According to the student handbook, the most important aspect of physical education is the emphasis placed on participation, rather than skill level (ability).

Jen Meadows said, "I hate the running, but I do like basketball even though it is hard work getting through the guards and making the baskets."

Football is another well-liked sport according to Freshman Kendra DeVries. Kendra also said, "It's a cool sport because of the teamwork needed."

Tennis was another enjoyed Physical Education activity. "Tennis is a fun sport because you are able to go outside and get exercise," said freshman Aaron Griffey.

Tennis can also be a hard sport because if you don't have good eye and hand coordination it can be difficult to hit the ball back over to the other team for a point.

Another reason why tennis was enjoyed by students was because, "It was a change from the usual pace," said Elena Bernaska.

Involvement was the true test at what a student has learned mentally and was determined by the written examination given at the end of each activity.

Involvement was the Key to PE.

Going for a dunk in P.E., Mike Bahnerth makes the shot.

Rich Tillema utilizes his track skills, learned through P.E. class, to run a track meet.

Working hard for the tumbling test, Brian Cunningham does a cartwheel.

Taking a break from weights class, Chris Cavanaugh, Aaron English, Ryan Armstrong and Kevin Truman-Forhand talk about their plans.

Hands-on activities elevate meaning

Choosing careers, calculating velocity, understanding difficult biochemical reactions, and identifying organisms were just a few of the unlimited challenges which science students encountered in Biology I through AP Physics. Many of these subjects were hard to grasp, but hands-on experience offered in labs and field trips solved this problem for most students. With hands-on experience, they can see science in action and have a better understanding of the subject. "Hands-on experience in science allowed me to choose a career in Biomedical Research and know that I will truly enjoy it," said Senior Joy Mervosh.

Not only do in-class experiments create a better understanding of science, but field trips and competitions also contribute to science education. On February 18, several students with various backgrounds in science competed in the Science Olympiad at St. Joseph's college in Rensselaer. Events ranged from Metric Mastery to Quantitative Analysis Lab. The teams got a first place in Bioprocess Lab and Designer Genes, a second in Physics Lab, a third in Circuit Lab, Nature Quest, and Quantitative Analysis Lab, and a fourth in Chemistry Lab, Experimental Design, Science of Fitness, and "What Are You Telling Me?" The Olympiad team earned fourth place overall. Samantha Boone, an AP Biology and AP Physics student, said, "The Science Olympiad is great for people who are interested in academic competition, but cannot make a long-term commitment. There are so many areas to choose from that everyone can find the team for which they are best suited."

Another competition took place on March 17 when Mr. Heid's AP Chemistry students competed in a chemistry contest at Valparaiso University. Among the many things that the students had to do included titrating acids and bases and identifying elements of a computer program. After the events, they were taken on a tour of the university's science department. Stacy Scholl said, "I thought the competition was educational, and I enjoyed my time there."

"Chemistry is a lot easier than I thought it would be. The things I enjoyed most about this class were the 'fun' labs, the friendly atmosphere, and of course, Ms. Haines."

—Jamie Sabuda, 12

After lab, Brooke Spurges and Laeey Smith work on writing a difficult lab report.

In an attempt to coat a flask with silver, Shannon Wareman and Natalie Sark carefully measure and mix the different chemicals.

Sharing his science knowledge, Mr. Biddle enjoys teaching biology to freshmen.

Accurate measurements are critical to successful outcomes. Knowing this, Stephene Moyer carefully measured distilled water in a graduated cylinder.

Social Studies classes study life; make history in classes ranging from history to sociology.

World history classes learned about beginning civilizations like the Egyptians and the Romans. They studied the French Revolution and leaders like Napoleon. "I think world history is very interesting because of all the fun things we get to do," said Kristen Cambe.

U.S. History classes learned about the things that shaped the country like the Civil War, the Great Depression, and World Wars I and II. "I have Mrs. Price for U.S. History. I thought it would be boring, but I'm actually learning something. She knows how to relate to people our age," said Amanda Lucas.

Government and Economic classes learned in detail how the government and economy work. School board meetings, political rallies, current events in the spot news coverage, stock market projects, and economic competitions kept seniors busy and informed about the government and economy.

Mr. Post's Economics team placed first at St. Joseph's College at Economics Day. "I find economics challenging despite all the hard work. I believe that I have learned something in Mr. Post's class.

I really like government because Mr. Hoover has a way to make learning fun. I'll never forget when he crawled under his desk to get our attention," said Jamie Sabuda.

Current issues classes used television and newspapers to learn of the current issues of the world. This included Congressman Steve Buyer's KV campaign stop in May.

Human decision and how they effect the world was the basis of Sociology and Psychology.

International relations classes learned about the geographical features of the world and how it effects different cultures of the world.

“ Although Mrs. Price's class was a little challenging, it was great preparation for the AP test. Writing all those essays became a huge advantage when it came down to the real thing,” said Corine Tachitiris. ”

Smiling in a job well done, Julian Barron and Amber Midkiff took pride in their world map that they drew on an Opaque machine in world history.

Attentively taking notes in economics, Trisha Hachlita furthers her knowledge of the country.

Carefully studying a world map, Jennifer Moyers sees where different cities and countries are located in the world.

Lena Martin and Helen Hicks use their map of the world off an opaque machine during world history class as a project in which they were given a list of cities, and countries which they were to draw and locate on a map.

While Mr. Post lectures, Angela Padol, Melissa Schoonveld, and Michelle Wallace take notes.

T echnology offers Work opportunities

Technology classes offered a good start in life. Options for the hands-on student included woods, welding, drafting and housing. Woods class was an important part of the technology program.

Woods class instructor, Mr. McDowell, said that the main purpose of his class was to learn the many various ways of working with wood, a living and renewable material. Construction of household products, such as chairs, was one project. "Students also learned to use sewing machines in applying fabric to these chairs," added McDowell. Mr. McDowell also stressed that woods class emphasized skills such as problem solving, measuring, making layouts (plans) and doing type work. The class fostered self discipline, making a wood product can take four to five weeks, and also emphasized machine safety, a main concern for welding students.

Mr. Mengell, the welding class instructor, described his class's purpose as teaching the repair of items made of different metals such as mufflers, benches, trailers, aluminum boats and motors. Matt Gluth, a welding student, said his biggest challenge was welding vertical up. Vertical up is welding from the bottom up.

"It's a good start to a welding career," added Chris Solich, another welding student. Along with woods and welding was the drafting class conducted by Mr. Hine and housing taught by Mr. Mulvihill.

The varied courses in technical skills introduced challenges and opportunities of vocational employment to many of the students.

Woods, building trades, architectural drawing, metals and general shop were all important parts of my career training.

Athletic students gave their all this year; they ran, swam, dribbled, spiked, and swung their fastest, hardest and best. After hours of practices preparation, and perspiration, teams faced intense pressure battling their rivals. The girl's basketball team made it to sectionals where they won the championship game 67-62 in overtime. The swimming season was led by Scott Krueger and Todd Moolenaar, who qualified for state and was the first ever sectional champion in our history. Lacey Smith and Amanda Hall tore up the track, leading them to the championships. Whether participating in the fast-paced action or cheering from the sidelines, sports fans never found a dull moment, and athletes continued their adventure to the top.

Pounding Out Victory

"Bittersweet" was the word used by Coach McDowell to sum up the '94 football season. Although pleased with his team's performance, he felt that his team was disappointed with their winning record of 5-3. Last year's record may have been a factor in their disappointment, as Coach McDowell said, "We've lost so many football games in the past years, then we have a 7-3 season (1993) and get greedy. It's good that they're disappointed though. It shows they're striving to be better."

This team felt that they were better too. Senior Tim Helton said, "We were the strongest, fastest, and most dedicated team of the others we played. Our record doesn't indicate what we were capable of." Coach McDowell completely agreed with this. He commented that he never once questioned this team's work ethic. As far as practices were concerned, he said that "This team ran more, lifted more, and conditioned more. They also had great summer turn-outs."

Work was evident during their season, particularly the Munster and Rensselaer games. Although the Cougars lost against Munster and won against Rensselaer, they were comparable games—in both games the Cougars showed the best overall team efforts of their entire season. Senior Co-Captain Charly Finney said, "We were just really pumped for the Rensselaer game. We knew we were going to be challenged, and we were able to defeat them to win back the crackerbarrel."

At the winter awards banquet eight trophies were given out, and six players were awarded the Cougar Pride award. Most Improved went to Mike Peo and Ryan Armstrong. Best Defensive players were awarded to Scott Patrick and Jim Herrick. Andy Spenner received three awards: Most Tackles, Mr. Defense, and Most Valuable Lineman. Mr. Offense went to Junior quarterback Bruce Przybylski. Seven Cougar Pride awards went to Seniors Scott Patrick, Tim Helton, Charles Finney, Ben Duttlinger, Jim Herrick, and Kevin Silverthorne. Cougar Pride is presented to players chosen by the coaching staff who throughout the season gave 100% effort.

Beating the Odds

Freshman football team overcame all obstacles as they went undefeated against several tough teams. There were many factors which contributed to this; their past knowledge of the game being one of the most important. They did not come to Coach Gray and Coach Orsburn unprepared for their season. Most had attended the summer camps for two weeks before the school year began.

"As a class, they are extremely deep in quality players," commented Coach Orsburn. Their depth proved to be crucial to them, as they only had three players on both sides of the ball. Coach Gray said, "They were fresh when it was their turn on the field. Very few area freshman teams had this depth in their favor." Because of their depth, both coaches felt that they will be just as successful next year, as a J.V. team.

Their best game came against Rensselaer. For the past two years, the team had struggled and come up short against this Bomber team. At the time of the game, both teams were undefeated. Cougars took an early lead and were able to hold it for a 12-6 win. It was the highlight of their season as Scott Sytsma put it, "We had a goal to go undefeated and we knew this was going to be one of our toughest games."

Their goal was achieved, through all of their hard work and effort. According to both coaches they were a very coachable team that took instructions well and gave only 100%. Coach Orsburn had not coached football in five years, and he felt that this group of teens made it fun to get back into. Coach Gray also said that, "I really enjoyed this season, as my first year as a freshman coach."

Individual awards were given out to six different players. Jeff Misch received Most Improved. Lance Culp received Best Offensive Back. The Best Offensive Lineman went to Kyle Hanley. The Best Defensive Lineman was awarded to Kenny Kapella. Chris Scott and Aaron Griffey shared the title of Best Defensive Back.

Setting New Records

Todd Moolenaar was the first Cougar swimmer to go to state, finishing 20th in the 100m backstroke. Scott Kruegar broke records in the 50, 100, and 200m freestyles. Cougars broke seven records, and finished the year with a record of 11 wins and only 5 losses.

Boys swim team had their goals set high as they started the season with very serious pre-season conditioning, which consisted of running many miles, lifting weights, and swimming laps in the pool.

In the first meet they destroyed Calumet and went on to place second in the N.W.H.C. behind Rensselaer, and place third in their own invitational. This was the best in four years.

Swimmers had one of their best seasons with only five dual meet losses to Rensselaer, Hobart, Hammond Gavit, Crown Point, and Lafayette Harrison.

Senior, Charlie Finney said, "It was an honor to be on the team when the swim team had one of their best seasons."

Depth was a key factor with all their experience Cougars took advantage of this by finishing fourth in the Rensselaer invite, placing sixth in the Lake Central Sectional, and sending their first swimmer to State competition.

Sectionals was very promising for the Cougar swimmers. In scoring their personal best score of 110 points, Sophomore, Todd Moolenaar qualified for the State finals in the 100 meter backstroke, and tied for 20th place.

Senior, Scott Kruegar said, "Overall it was a great year. Instead of having only two fast guys, we had about five, and all the other guys were good and had talent."

This season brought many new school records for the team.

Scott Kruegar set records in the 50, 100, and 200m free styles, Todd Moolenaar topped scores in the 200 individual medley, and 100m. backstroke, and the 200 and 400 freestyle relays. On the relay teams were Moolenaar, Adam Hoffman, Jason Shelton, and Kruegar.

Diving Into Dominance

When asked what the main factor of the girls swim team's success was, Coach Michael said, "These girls work as hard, if not harder, than any other." The girls on the other hand, commented on what a great coach they had. Paula Zandstra said, "I had my best season since I've started swimming. I feel this is because our coach personalized the workouts." Katie Martin reflected on the mental side of things by stating, "Mr. Michael had a lot to do with our positive attitudes. He taught us to support and help our team members, and also to respect one another."

Whatever it was, it worked. The girls finished their season with a record of 6-1. They also had an astonishing win at the Lowell Invitational. Due to a band concert scheduled on the same weekend, the team competed with only seven girls. First places were taken in four events. Nicole Holst, Shelly Gates, Katie Martin, and Paula Zandstra won the 400 m relay. Katie Martin also took first in the 100 Butterfly and 200 Individual Medley. In the 500 freestyle Paula Zandstra was the #1 finisher. Mr. Michael felt that "It was such a great win because it was so unexpected."

Not only did the girls excel in team effort, but their individual efforts also exceeded those of the past. Katie Martin broke five records, including those of the 100 Butterfly, 200 IM, 100 Breastroke, 100 Backstroke and 100 Freestyle. The 200 Medley Relay was shattered with a time of 2:10.63 by Michelle Wallace, Katie Martin, Paula Zandstra and Shelley Gates.

Another stand out individual was freshman Jill Garvey. Jill brought the team a lot of 2nd and 3rd place finishes. "For me, this year was an introduction to what I need to do for the team in the future."

Awards were given to both senior captains, Katie Martin and Nicole Holst. Martin also received the Most Valuable Swimmer Award, while Holst was named the Most Dedicated. Jill Garvey won the Rookie of the Year.

From having the skills to escape a tight clinch to bringing the opponent down for a pin, wrestling took quick thinking and reactions.

Joe Kopanda had what it took to excel in this sport. He was the sole member of the team to qualify for semi-state competition. The only way to master this sport was through hard work and discipline. A typical warm up for the wrestlers consisted of running three miles, doing plenty of push-ups and calisthenics then walking stair laps with a buddy on their back, doing wheel barrows, and lifting weights. Then, they wrestled their partner. "The practices were tough especially because we had to make up for the loss of last year's seniors," commented Scott Lacey.

The team was comprised almost entirely of new faces. "The older guys did alright. The younger guys got a taste of high school sports and higher competition. Surprisingly they handled the transition pretty well," said Coach Prochno.

Though the wrestlers proved themselves to be somewhat unpredictable in a variety of ways throughout their season, capability to be a prized team remained. "This team has worked twice as hard as any team in the area," replied Ray Gross. A prime example of the personal toughness that some of the wrestlers achieved throughout the season was heavy weight Aaron English who pinned competitors who outweighed him by as much as one-hundred pounds.

Changing of the Guard

"Change," senior tri-captain Jeff Sampson said, "typified this season." The season saw four sophomores: Kyle Martin, Mike Bahnert, Marc Gott, and Dustin Wright receive time on the varsity. Tim Jones returned after a year away from basketball as a senior. It was also Coach Jack Ford's inception into the Kougar basketball program. "This was a blue-collar team, what success we got was through hard work. What they lacked in talent, they tried to make up with hard work" is how coach Ford assessed the team.

Kougars had laurels as well as hardships. They played Gary Wirt, who had beaten the #1 team in the state, to a stand-off until late in the fourth quarter, and beat conference rival Lowell twice. Twice they blew double digit leads against rival Hebron, and did the same against Kouts. Kevin Silverthorne had this to say, "We were up and down the whole year. The tough games that we won were the games where our team play showed through." Tim Jones added, "Some of the tough games eluded us, but we pulled it together against Lowell in the sectional, stood fast, and with a little senior leadership in overtime, pulled it out." Kougars won that first round sectional game 55-48 in overtime.

Up next in the sectional were the Hebron Hawks. They had won the previous meeting. Kougars had a different ideas this time, as they jumped out to a 36-24 lead at the half. Coach Ford said, "We reached our potential in the first half of the Hebron game. It was the best that we could play. We executed both offensively and defensively." Then came the second half which went to Hebron 52-30 for a final score of 76-66 with Hebron on top. On the sectional Jeff Sampson said, "The fire screwed us up. It threw us out of our normal routine; it couldn't have happened at a worse time for us."

Shooting for stars

Kougar varsity basketball players had more than just wins to shoot for this season, they had stars to shoot for too. Kougar players were awarded for individual play along with team accomplishments by getting stars on the back of their shooting shirts that they wore on game-days. Jeff Sampson said, "The stars were neat to try for. It's good to accomplish as a team and individually."

The star system is something that Coach Ford has used wherever he's been. He feels that the stars are just, "one more incentive to elevate play." Coach Ford likened the stars to the stick-ers football players receive on their helmets for achievement on the field.

The star system awards one individual star for each of these accomplishments in a single game: 12 Rebounds, 5 Offensive rebounds, 8 Defensive rebounds, 7 Assists, 70%-80% Field goal %, 80%-100% Free throw %, 8 Consecutive free throws, 8 Defensive positives, 4 Steals, 3 Charges taken, 4 Blocked shots, Key play—Save game etc.

A team star is awarded for achieving seven out of ten of the following goals during a single game: Force 15 turnovers, Commit less than 10 turnovers, Hold opponent to less than 43% Field goal, Hit 50% Field goal, Hit 70% Free throw, 15 Assists, Hold opponents to 55 points, Commit less than 15 fouls, Take 10 more shots than our opponent.

An automatic team star is awarded for the following: Win over a ranked team, Conference win, Sectional win, Force 20 turnovers, Commit only 5 turnovers, Hold opponents to less than 40% Field goal, Hit 60% Field goal, Hit 77% Free throw, Get 23 Assists, Hold opponent under 40 points, Commit only 6 fouls, Take 15 more shots than the opponent.

Leading the team in stars were Tim Jones and Kyle Martin with 28 apiece and Kevin Silverthorne was a close second with 25. On the stars Kevin Silverthorne said, "We needed more. They made me proud of my shirt though. It felt good to be recognized when I wore it on game day."

Awards were as follows: JV: Free Throw %, Most Assists: Dustin Wright, Most Rebounds: Kyle Hanley, Mental Attitude: David Walstra, Hustle Award: Jeff Lauraitis, Most Improved: Jamie Smith.

Scorching The Nets

'Dream Team' was one way to describe the 20-2 Lady Cougars who boasted not only four All-Conference Standouts, but also captured Coach of the Year favors for Frank Ginder. "They were great players, who were dedicated to getting better and really worked hard to prepare themselves," commented Coach Ginder about the team. With a rotation of All-Conference players Melissa Schoonveld, Kari Myers, Margaret Strain, and Rachel Knip, the season could not have been any different.

Defeated only by North Judson, the Lady Cougars faced sectionals with great hopes and dreams. When injury side lined Rachel Knip during the 2nd sectional game against Hanover Central, it caused a minor set back, but also created unity for the team. "When Rachel got hurt during the game, it scared me. I didn't know what we would do without her, but everyone took a step up in their game and played to the best of their ability. We came out on top!" expressed Jennifer Schoon.

All four periods of the final round of sectional action were given and take between the Lady Cougars and the North Newton Spartans. "We were down by three in regulation (51-54), and with eleven seconds left, Mel (Schoonveld) hit a three to send the game into overtime. We outscored them 13-8 in overtime. The final score was 67-62," exclaimed Margaret Strain. "Sectionals will probably be what I will remember most from my basketball career. The final game topped it all off." Schoonveld said, "It was great to come back and do what we were supposed to do: Win."

Striving for a basket, Rachel Knip takes a shot.

Putting To Perfection

Golfers "Kept their heads down," and "followed through" in a record breaking 10-4 season. They broke the 9 hole, 18 hole, and team average. "This is the best season for the girls golf team in KV history. It was a fantastic year," said Coach Scott Green. The girls achieved this level of excellence by spending much of their summer months on the golf course. A few of the girls even participated in the IGA PGA junior golf tour to help them work on their skills along with giving them competition.

There is much more to golf than people think. There are many etiquette and game rules that you need to know in order to play competitively.

It's not only a physical game, it is mainly a mental one. "It is really hard to keep your head in the game under pressure," replied Keri Spurgeon.

After five straight wins and a strong showing against #12 Andrcan, golfers came into sectionals with confidence in their abilities. "Our goal was to break a 400. We thought that that would get us out of sectionals as a team," commented Keri Spurgeon.

The team fell short by five strokes coming in 4th with a 390, which was their highest finish ever.

Melissa Stamper was the sole member to continue on to Regional competition. She fired a 100 but was unable to advance to state due to "Very tough competition and bad weather. If I would have shot my average, I would have made it to state," Melissa sighed.

Awards were issued to: Most Valuable Golfer: Melissa Stamper, Most Consistent Golfer: Margaret Strain, Most Improved Golfer: Joanne Fagen, Most Dedicated Golfer: Keri Spurgeon, and the Golf Etiquette Award went to Jennifer Yankey.

Firing a 95 at sectionals, Margaret Strain finishes up her golf career.

Season Record 10-4

Volleying To Velocity

"We started out slow but came on and ended up a very strong team," said Coach Tania Price. This pretty much summed up the netters who dropped ten straight early in the year. However, "After agreeing to 'start the season over' they lost only two games. One of those was the sectional championship," reflected Coach Price.

Their heart and hard work were exemplified by their gutsy play on the game floor. Kari Myers said, "We always concentrated in practice on outworking our opponents. We had a great group that worked hard and had a lot of heart and desire to do their best." Coach Price added, "This was a very hard working group. Even though we didn't have the big hitter we might be accustomed to, we picked up the slack with defensive hustle when we needed to."

A very balanced attack was utilized by the spikers. Other opponents could not zero in on one specific position. Thus, the question of over-sized egos may arise. "No way, not on this team," said Myers, angry at such an inference. "We had a lot of fun, even though the year was challenging." Coach Price cited senior leadership as a major factor in the team's family like atmosphere. "Even though we had only two seniors, they gave us everything they had; 100%. They will be sorely missed."

Kougars after starting out slow, won seven of their last nine. The season also saw them get to the sectional championship game by beating West Central 15-6, 15-3. In the final they fell just short of beating conference rival Lowell and bowed out 15-17, 9-15. This prompted Kari Myers to say, "We played to the best of our ability, wanted to win sectionals, and just didn't."

One bright spot was the play of sophomore Angelee Abbring, who helped lead the late season surge. Angelee said, "The team had a lot of ups and downs, but really jelled at the end." She was only one of a feisty group of sophomore varsity members which included Jen Kaluf, Rachel Kaper, Shanna Snyder, and Abbring.

Awards were as follows: Co-Captains: Kari Myers, Brooke Kozak, Best Offense: Angelee Abbring, Best Passer: Rachel Kaper, Most Solo Blocks: Angelee Abbring, Most Assists: Kari Myers, Best Serving %: Shanna Snyder, Cougar Pride: Judy Bakker, All-Conference: Kari Myers, Angelee Abbring.

Pacing With Pride

"The girls had an incredible season!" They were Conference and Sectional Champs and just missed continuing on to Regionals as a team.

Running with Lacey Smith in practice has paid off for sophomore Amanda Hall, who claimed second directly behind Lacey at Regionals. Both girls reached a mutual goal to finish the race before North Newton's top runner Jaynie Wagner.

Representing the team at State were Lacey Smith and Amanda Hall. Three of the underclass girls made the All Conference team: Lacey Smith, Amanda Hall, and Alesha Studer. Senior Jennifer Schurman and juniors Valerie Tachtritis and Lacey Smith, provided a foundation of experience for the team. "I think we've done really well and worked really hard," said Katie Deardorff.

Boys team lacked experience because it had no senior members. "The boys season was a long struggle. The team was injured by the fact that Mike Nannenga, an experienced runner from last year, was crippled the majority of the season," said Coach Prochno.

In the Conference meet freshman Keith Wallace and sophomore Luke Flory made the All Conference team and Justin Shafer, a freshman, made honorable mention. "This will give us a lot to work with next year," commented Coach Norwine. "The boys team was okay this year. It is hard to make up for the four senior guys that we lost from last year. But both teams are young and will improve with experience," replied Coach Prochno. "I think that we are doing all right if we can get everyone to do their part and take responsibility," replied Mike Nannenga.

Boys awards were issued to: Most Valuable Player: Luke Flory, Rookie of the Year: Justin Shafer, Most Improved: Wally Kendall, and Academic Award: Mike Nannenga.

Being in good company

This marks the third straight year that Lacey Smith has gone to the state finals for girls cross country in Indianapolis. "My drive for a scholarship and love for winning keep me going!" Lacey said.

Smith also has help from outside influences as well as the desire in her heart as she cited her parents and coaches as a couple of her biggest inspirations: "Coach Prochno has really helped by pushing me, when maybe I wasn't doing a good enough job of pushing myself, and when I excel, it feels good to know that I've made my parents proud of me."

How does she handle being back to back regional champion, three-time state finalist, and having her name used in the same breath as back to back state champion Celeste Susnik? She's eager to pass around the credit: "Having Amanda Hall there this year really helped out a lot," Smith said. "She made state much more fun, and really helped me keep a healthy attitude throughout the year. Who couldn't use a little friendly rivalry?"

Awards, honors, and a star status aren't all that Smith has gotten out of cross country. The ramifications that it has had on her in life will long outlive her competitive days. "Cross country and running have really given me the discipline that it will take to get along in general day to day life," Smith said. "It has taught me how to manage my time and put my priorities in the right place."

From road races, to marathons, to track season, Lacey Smith keeps herself in shape. This enables her to run some 2.8 miles in under 17 minutes. Thus, another Kankakee Valley cross country runner, is a great one.

Awards were presented to the following people: Most Valuable Runner: Lacey Smith. Mental Attitude: Amanda Hall, Rookie of the Year: Alesha Studer, Most Improved: Jennifer Schurman, and the Academic award went to Lacey Smith. All Conference: Lacey Smith, Amanda Hall, Alesha Studer, NWHC Champs.

Un"matched" in play

"A young team," coach Roberts commented, "is what we were. However, we made strides towards becoming a better team." Cougar boys while being a young team took their lumps in compiling a 2-15 record. In winning a first round sectional matchup against East Chicago, they did salvage some credibility. The lone senior on the squad, Tim Jones, eventually won sectionals and came within one match of going to state. Ben Coleman, an undefeated player from Gary Wallace, stood in his way however, and Jones went down, 6-3, 6-4. On his loss, Jones had this to say: "It was a great pressure situation, and I felt I rose to the occasion, but I just fell short.

It's a shame it would have been great to go to state." Boys awards were handed out to the following: Most Valuable Player, Team Captain: Tim Jones, Most Dedicated: Ryan Mikus, Rookie of the year: Doug Ruehl.

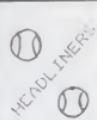

Kougars girls caught fire midway through the season and at one time won five matches in a row, thus helping them to an 8-7 record. Strategic improvements were evident by the end of the season as the singles and doubles players had a much more confident air about them. Coach Moofenaar commented, "We improved so much on our strategic play. We learned to hit to the backhand and go to the net." These improvements also led to a good showing at the annual conference meet, third place. "We lost so many matches 2-3! All year we were fighting to get over the hump, but we finished up strong," said #1 Singles player Kari Myers. Awards were delivered to the following: #1 Singles: Kari Myers, Co-Rookie of the year: Megan Hartzler and Angi Terborg, Co-Most improved: Norma Haan and Kara Zylstra, Most Dedicated: Staci Sytsma.

Striding For Success

"Outstanding!" is the only way to describe the boys track season. Not only did they meet their goal of finishing first in the NWHC for the third year and the Rensselaer Relays, they had eight members qualify for Regionals. They were: J.D. Jablonski in pole vault and high jump, James Broyles in shot put, Claus Nielson in the 800, Andy Spenner in discus, Rich Tillema in Hurdles, Charly Finney in 200 and 400, and the 1600 relay team. Advancing to state, James Broyles threw the shot put 53 feet. Broyles placed 15th at the state meet.

"We had a lot of success this year because of the hard work and the Senior leadership, but we owe most of the fantastic season to the great coaching," said Senior Rich Tilleman.

Senior leadership was a key factor. It led the way with outstanding individual performances and a good practice work ethic.

Senior Brian Misch said, "We worked hard, had many hard workouts, and put in a lot of miles, but it was all worth it because it led to the great success of the team."

Finishing the season with a record of 12 wins and only 1 loss proved to be one of the best seasons ever.

Senior Charly Finney said, "It was an honor to be part of this year's track team. We really over achieved and added one more block to the structure of a small history at KVHS."

Awards for the season were: Team Captains: Charly Finney and Rich Tillema. Most Valuable Sprinters: Charly Finney and Rich Tillema. Most Valuable Field events: Andy Spenner and J.D. Jablonski. Rookie of the year: Claus Nielson and James Broyles. Most Valuable Distance Runner: Luke Flory. Most Dedicated Athlete: Charly Finney.

Running Beyond Limits

Practice. Practice. Practice was the focus of the track team. Hard practices led the Lady Cougars to win 12 meets and lose only 1 to a State ranked team. This brought their career record to 210 wins 50 losses and 1 tie.

"All of the hard work paid off with the fun we had and our team success," said senior captain Joanne Fagen.

Lady Cougars won the Twin Lakes Relays for the 6th year, they captured N.W.H.C. for the 7th consecutive year and placed 2nd in the sectional to State ranked Valpo for the 3rd year. The average margin of victories for the Cougars was 45 points.

Tracksters had many surprises throughout the year: Senior shot putters Jenny Yankey and Rachel Knip were consistently competing against one another, at the N.W.H.C. Knip broke the school record and Yankey came right back and broke it her next throw. Jessie Stueben once again made it to the State finals in high jump along with teammate Jenny Yankey in shot put. Yankey placed 14th with a throw of 37'6". Jessie Stueben failed to qualify.

Senior Margaret Strain said, "I'm really glad I decided to join track for my Senior year. I really enjoyed being part of this successful group."

Swinging for the fences

Smack dab in the middle of the second season in Cougar softball history is where Coach Brian Flynn and his softball team found themselves. A beefed up schedule added to the tension. "We battled hard against some good programs," said Coach Flynn. Despite their tough schedule and program infancy Cougars built themselves an 8-11 record. On the season Brook Kozak had this to say. "With our schedule toughening it has made the season much more exciting. The Whiting and Wheeler games were good indications of how far our program has come in two years of time." Shelly Reeker agreed. "Going against better competition has helped us mature as a team."

With wins over competition such as Hobart and Culver Military, Cougars staked their claim as a future force to be reckoned with in Indiana softball. "It was a learning experience for us all. When our hitting was lacking, we made up for it with a good pitching staff. Mel Schoonveld provided great hitting and leadership. She will be missed," is how Amanda Hall summed up the season.

Mel Schoonveld led the team in almost all offensive categories, including batting average, hits, extra base hits, and runs batted in. Brook Kozak commented on Mel by saying, "We'll miss our four seniors because of their leadership and experience. Mel will be missed especially because all year long she was our clutch hitter. Awards were granted to the following: Best batting average, Most hits, Most extra base hits, Most runs batted in: Melissa Schoonveld, Most stolen bases: Misty Mattingly, Most wins pitching: Brook Kozak, Most strikeouts: Connie Butler.

In The Swing of Things

The baseball players dusted off their mitts and drug out their spikes in order to help prepare themselves for the 21-8 season which lay ahead. The 18th placed preeason ranked team looked forward to a strong start with four returning seniors along with a handful of experienced junior and sophomore players. Unfortunately it took the team a few weeks to get their game back into the swing of things. "At the beginning of the season, we were not ready to play as a team yet," Brent Dyniewski commented. As they pulled things together, they started an adventure that later won them the honor of 2nd place in the Northwest Hoosier Conference with a Conference record of 9-3.

Efforts of the baseball team were evident to every fan. The players showed a great amount of enthusiasm, hustle, and the desire to win. The players efforts were not in vain. "Once we started playing as a team we started winning consistently," said Andrew Slatton. Their efforts brought a 14 game winning streak along with the pride of being ranked 16th in the state.

The streak came to a close when the team was unable to defeat the challenging Benton Central team. Along with losing the game, the team also lost its chance to set or tie the school record of 15 straight wins.

The team won a tough game against Lowell. "We were fired up and seeking revenge!" exclaimed Brent Dyniewski. Then went on to beat Boone Grove and Hebron sending them to regionals. At the time of this publication.

Concentrating on his mission to score, Kevin Truman-Fore hand slides in safely.

With a stance of determination Jim Holmes knocks one out of the park.

Stepping up to the batter's box, Brent Dyniewski prepares to get on base.

After getting the signal for the pitch, Andrew Slatton throws a curve ball.

"We had a very exciting season!"

Charging off the field after a victory, Bruce Przybylski and Aaron English discuss the last call.

Shot Above Par

Boys golf team combined dedication and discipline to reach their goal to succeed. "They played and will play golf any time they can," commented Coach Scott Green. With long practice hours the boys tried their hardest to show that ability and talent are not the only things needed to be a part of the team. "They worked on their game every minute in practice and were always looking for ways to improve," said Coach Green.

Move in from Merrillville junior Brett Parkis added his name to the team roster. He, along with sophomore Mike Bahnerth, were named to the All-Conference team. Honorable mention team shooters were senior Tyler Martin, junior Chris Cavanaugh, and sophomore Jeff Lauraitis.

The team was very young with one senior, two juniors, and twelve sophomore and freshman players. "This team worked well as a unit. Tyler Martin kept the team loose and relaxed. Everyone helped each other out. They were always competing against one another," commented Coach Green.

The team had to return to Forest Park Golf Course on Monday, June 5 for the second time due to a rain delay called after the first round of play. Jeff Lauraitis was the constant low shooter for the team. He fired an 84 in the Valparaiso Sectional. Also scoring for the team were Chris Cavanaugh, 84; Mike Bahnerth, 88; and Brett Parkis with an 89. A strong effort was not enough to advance the team on to regional competition. They placed 7th out of 11 teams.

The season ended with a record of 14 and 5 and a conference record of 5 and 1. Setting a school record for wins.

Awards were issued to: Co-Most Valuable Golfers: Jeff Lauraitis, Mike Bahnerth; Most Consistent Golfer: Chris Cavanaugh; Rookie of the Year: Brett Parkis; and the Golf Etiquette Award went to Tyler Martin.

Displaying perfect form, Mike Bahnerth drives the ball down the fairway.

Fasten Safety Belts

We survived the year, but each class had its own worries. The 251 freshmen wondered how they'd get through the year, anxiety plagued them as they tackled additional loads of homework and kept out of the seniors' way. Sophomores joined 258 classmates in stressing over parallel parking and dreading the new IPASS testing.

Preparing for prom and cramming for the SAT, 256 juniors united in wishing the year would quickly come to an end. College days and scholarships distressed the 208 seniors as they waded through applications and financial aid forms but looked forward to new horizons. Not only the seniors, but all of the 973 individuals continued on with their adventure.

Working against the clock, Allison Fase and Corine Tachtiris have some fun racing to finish up the newspaper before deadline.

Choir members Adam Woolever and Ryan Russel strike a pose as they relax at Celebration Station after a concert.

New Administration Brings Change

When 1,005 students returned to school on August 22 things looked the same, but the atmosphere was different. Within 24 hours, the students knew that teamwork, rules, and fair play would be a part of the new administrative team's positive atmosphere.

Principal Apple said, "KV has a loving and caring student body who has come together as one."

Vice principal Willets' primary goal was; "To have the best or most outstanding educational establishment in the state of Indiana."

Vice principal Ford said that he would like to, "Take a good school and make it better."

Superintendent Floyd said, "The students seem to have a very positive attitude toward education with the new administration. They are very cooperative and involved."

Presenting a $9,000 check to the assembly, Mr. Apple congratulates the student body on the efforts to help "one of their own."

Friendship dominates class

Finally released from the "old ball and chain" is what a lot of seniors believe graduation to be. Senior class of 1995 has had many accomplishments throughout their four years of high school.

As freshmen the seniors proved their enthusiasm by winning the Homecoming spirit stick, against the class of '91. A victory that will never be forgotten.

As the journey began to unravel, memories were made for many individuals. Joni Knip and Brian Niketh were named prom prince and princess, Kelly Dunn was crowned Homecoming queen, Sarah Flory won the Jr. Miss Competition, and nine seniors attended college second semester. As seniors, they pulled together with one another and the school to help raise money for a teacher in need, Mr. Hamilton. There have been so many memories from sports to academics that prove the past four years to be truly successful.

As juniors, working as a team came into effect. Although being kicked out of the pep session did not help any it did not stop the class of '95. They came back and won the next three spirit sticks. They were always striving to be the best at what they did.

Senior class also realized that in order to make it in high school one has to have friends. Friendships were something that the class of '95 had in ample supply. Everyone was friends and they all got along. Friendship began to form during the first two months of their senior year when three truck loads of seniors went out and t-ped fifteen Junior girls on the powder puff team. They then proceeded to cheer one another on in sporting events and in academics.

The past four years has been a time where friendships have been built, records have been broken, goals have been met, and memories have been created. High school is not meant to be a prison, but a learning experience, and a home to grow up to be the best we can be. The one thing the seniors valued most out of all the things that they were taught is that no matter what others think of you, everyone is someone as long as you never give up.

Helping the office collect attendance during the week of first semester finals, Katie Martin, Kacey DeKock, and Misty Orcutt find time to take a break from all their studies.

Choices open doors

With so much to do and not enough time to do it, many seniors found their senior year not only to fly by but also full of many decisions. During the first week of school "college" was a hot topic. Seniors were flooded with mail from colleges all over the country.

During studyhall and spare time seniors were found in the guidance office or in the library filling out college applications, financial aide forms, and scholarship papers. With two college days available per semester, many seniors took advantage and toured local colleges. Some local colleges that were a hot topic of conversation included Ball State, Butler, IU, Vincennes, ISU, and the popular Purdue. The military was also an option for outgoing seniors.

Toward the end of the first semester many of the Class of '95 knew where they were going or where they wanted to go. About ten seniors planned to further their education by enrolling in the service, Army, Marines, Navy, Airforce, or the ROTC.

Many seniors will find the real world easier than others after graduation because of local family businesses which they will begin to make their own career.

No matter where the class of '95 goes after graduation, whether it's to college, into the service, into the job market, or into marriage and family, they all will remember the good times and bad times encountered in the small Northwestern Indiana town of DeMotte.

Making grades; stress

It's the last night to study before your biggest final exam and you have to work until 10 P.M., you put off studying once again until the last minute. This is when the stress sets in.

Although many students are worrying about problems at home, extracurricular activities, and social problems, 33% of the senior class found the most stress coming from studying for their SAT and the ACT achievement tests. Sarah Hart said, "The times when I found to be the most stressful was the night before the SAT's and the morning of."

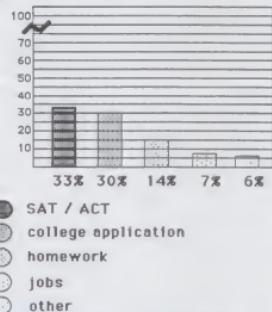

College applications was another big worry of the seniors. Over half of the class planned on attending college or entering the service. Jennifer

Yankey, one of the top three in the class said, "After school I plan to enter the Marines."

Harvey Nannenga, a member of the National Honor Society, said, "Studying and trying to get my homework done gives me the most stress."

There was always time to stress out over homework. Waiting until the last moment for a twelve page report, making up a speech the hour before it was due, finishing the last problem as we walked into class, were all very familiar to students. Most often it could have been prevented and was ignored.

Stress was very common in the senior class as they prepared to enter the real world and leave the past behind.

Downtown sparks fun

Finding something to do after school was not a hard thing for the class of 95. They found most of their free time going up town and driving around until they would finally end up on the "hill" with a bunch of friends.

A large percentage of the class did not go out of town to find a night of fun. They stayed in town and went to a friend's house, one of the local fast food restaurants, or just hung out downtown.

The seniors were very school oriented. Many of them were involved in sports or the academic teams. Those not involved in these activities showed their school spirit through staying after school and helping to decorate the hallways and windows for spirit week.

When not participating in a school function or cruising through town, the seniors found themselves going up north to see a movie, going bowling, going shopping, or out for dinner with a group of friends.

The class of '95 seemed to stick together in what they did with their free time. It would not be odd to see 20 to 40 seniors piled up in pick up trucks and cars.

This is how the Class of '95 was different than the others. It did not matter what they did in school or out of school as long as they stayed together.

Actions Speak Louder

"Please stand on the risers, closer together, O.K. smile, WAIT! don't move, please sign this sheet, stay in order." Many students heard this again and again as they filed into the auditorium or gym for yearbook's club picture day. With so many clubs to choose from, how could anybody get bored? More than fund raisers and field trips, clubs were also a way to stand out from the crowd and expand horizons while meeting new people. From Academic Decathlon to SADD, the diversity of the organizations was amazing.

Some (like FRA and BPOR) took part in intense state or national competitions, while others were primarily for entertainment purposes (like Computer club).

Helping was the goal of Peer Facilitators, Environmental Action, and Pathfinders. Any Student who looked found a club to suit his/her needs. Clubs were just another way for students to get the most out of their education and join in the adventure.

ours of practice
Leads to success

“Participation in Academic teams is an important educational experience in which I wish more people would become involved.”

—Kris Hoffman.

If one were to ask the average student how the football and basketball teams were doing, that student would have a good idea of what to say; but if one asked the same student how any of the academic teams fared, that same student would more than likely have no clue.

Regardless of the lack of attention given to the academic teams, several students who were curious about the teams decided to give competition a try. Kevin Kamminga said, “Academic Decathlon was a very enjoyable experience. It showed me how smart I really am. Overall, it was a great year and I enjoyed it thoroughly.”

Academic Competition began in the fall with Spellbowl. Spellbowl was a good opportunity for underclassmen to find out what academic competition was like. Their contribution was important in the team's success. For the upperclassmen, Spellbowl was pretty much a warm up for the more intense Academic Decathlon.

At the first Decathlon competition in December, the team won their seventh straight Conference title. In addition to a Conference victory, the team once again won the small-school division at area and qualified for state competition.

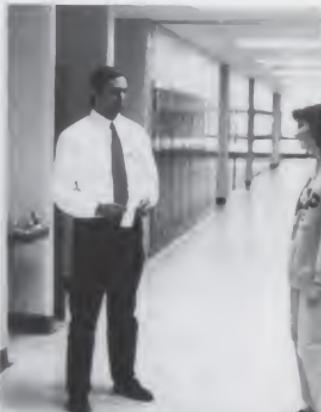

State Academic Decathlon took place at Southport High School on February 10 and 11. The team completed the essay, interview, and speech competitions on the night of February 10 and finished the competition on February 11 by taking scantron tests on Fine Arts, Science, written Super Quiz, Social Studies, Mathematics, Language and Literature, and Economics, and by participating in the team Super Quiz. The overall theme, Biotechnology, was integrated in most of the subject areas. Seniors on the team who had AP Biology class played a vital role in the team's third place finish in the small-school division. The team also captured first place in science with the highest score of any of the 24 teams.

Individual medal winners were Tom Barlog (silver in Varsity mathematics, bronze in economics), Samantha Boone (gold in Honors science, bronze in economics), Ericka Dreesen (gold in Scholastic science, silver), Kevin Kamminga (bronze in Varsity mathematics), Joy Mervosh (silver in Scholastic economics), Joe Malochka (bronze in Varsity science), Stacy Scholl (bronze in Scholastic speech), Corine Tachtiris (bronze in Honors interview and fine arts).

The last academic competition of the year was the Academic Super Bowl. Students on the Superbowl team were divided into teams of three people in areas such as mathematics, science, social studies, English, and fine arts. There was also an interdisciplinary team which required students of different areas of talent to answer questions on a variety of questions. The theme for the 1995 Academic Superbowl was The Environment. The third place finish contributed to the Conference All-Academic trophy.

Unfortunately, the team was not able to win Area, and the academic competitions ended for the year.

Poetry to me was once a mystery
Believed to be the language of the frail
Uninformed was I, as most through history
What was its importance to the world?

Browsing through some poems, I found one that hit home
And the lifelong secret was revealed
Each poet has to feel, then make his feelings real
To you and I through what we call a poem

People will always vary, so also must their poems
Just as we are different
We write from different homes,
For a poem is what you want it to be

Remember Me

Remember me when I'm gone away,
Gone far away into the silent land;
When you can never again hold my hand.
Now I half turn to go, yet turning I stay.
Remember me when no more day by day,
You tell me of our future that you've planned
Only remember me--you understand.
It will be too late to council then or pray.

Yet if you should forget me for awhile,
And afterwards remember; do not grieve;
For if the darkness and corruption leave
And you remember the thoughts that once I had,
Better by far you should forget and smile
Than that you should remember and be sad.

LIFE

Away we fall like leaves on a tree never to be known throughout man's history just another person in just another place forever filling up vacancies in just another empty space roaming around on a roller coaster for the rest of our lives never knowing the answer to the question called life.

It is cold outside the hard shell of my heart
I am forever lonely and forever alone
I sit in the ice covered field waiting
I am lost with no one to find me
I am strong, but perhaps not strong enough
I told them what to expect
I had warned them of the terrible danger
It is a pity that they refused to listen
I left them to their fate
I left with my heart wrapped against loss
It didn't help me to know I was right
They are all gone and I am alone
Tears will not help me in this cold place
Just as my knowledge freezes my heart.
I am the lost, the lonely, and I am the last.
I am what is left of humankind.

And no matter how hard I try I'm still-- yearning, yearning

MIRAGE offers a place for aspiring artists, photographers and writers to express themselves. Entitled A MIRAGE OF WORDS AND IMAGES, the 74 page magazine included numerous works by Ray Gross, Donna Walker, Tabitha Coffey, and Dan Nannenga who also designed the cover which depicted a prowling cougar in a desert. MIRAGE was dedicated to retiring Superintendent Iran Floyd. It was sponsored by Mrs. Miller whose dedication kept the magazine alive after the fire set back its print schedule six weeks.

Also effected by the fire was the Art Club whose members saw some of their works destroyed by the water. Undaunted by the experiences, the club, led by Ms. Benham, enjoyed their spring outing in Chicago.

After a morning viewing the artistry of Buckingham Fountain, the Palmer House, the Tribune building and the Art Institute, members enjoyed pizza and graffiti at Geno's East before boarding the train and riding home on the South Shore.

Media Club members check books in and out, file books, and help other students find books, newspapers and magazines. They also help students use the computers as well as delivering and picking up audio visual equipment.

“The importance of the Media Club is that it is the Hub of the school because no one can graduate without using its services sometime throughout his/her high school career,” said Media Center Secretary, Mrs. Sanders.

Media Club is made up of the hourly assistants whose hands on experience may provide future jobs as a librarian or a librarian aide. A 1994 graduate used her experience as a media assistant to become a librarian aide on her college campus.

Media Club met regularly. During meetings members planned a Christmas party at which the club provided the assistants with sandwiches from Subway. Assistants brought snacks and desserts to compliment the sandwiches. Although the party was scheduled for before the Christmas break, it was rescheduled for Valentine’s Day due to the absence of the club’s sponsor. They also planned a trip to Medieval Times in late April.

At their first meeting, they elected the following officers, President: Becky Burkhardt; Vice-president: Lauren Fritts; Secretary: Bonnie Nannenga; Treasurer: Nathaniel Lienberry; and Student Council Representative: Amy Chester.

Computer Club played games during the four lunch periods. One of the games was Doom in which the players fought against each other in a battle to become champion. Officers included: President: Tim Jones and Student Council Representative: Kevin Silverthorne. There were 47 members of the club.

Abner enthralls spring audience

"It was a lot harder because we didn't have the stage, it pulled the members together, and they worked harder." Jared Arnett.

From destroyed pianos to displaced classrooms, the music program, and the spring musical, the March 1 fire effected much more than the smoldering couch and cigarette which started it all.

"The stage was totally destroyed so we had to move our program to the cafeteria which wasn't the most convenient place because we had to re-arrange tables, set up and take down lights, and the set every night," said Keri Spurgeon.

Hardest hit was when the Lil' Abner cast members were scheduled to have vocal workshops. Auditions in the following week were held in the lecture hall and then they began rehearsals in the front hallway by the library. When they moved to the cafeteria, they had to struggle with moving the tables for every rehearsal and the constant stream of people coming to buy items from the vending machines.

In addition to the destruction of the stage was the loss of the wardrobe area. With none of the costumes or props available anymore, they had to gather all the necessary tools from scratch. Drama members had to pick up rental lights in Chicago on the vacation day after Easter. Piper and Loni scoured through Community Theatre Guild's costumes at the Opera House and everyone looked through their rag bags to find just the right costume. They struggled through the loss of several people from the cast for various reasons, which necessitated Mr. Ladd joining the cast once again and virtually everyone assuming multiple roles.

Pit Band, which consisted of Kevin Getz and Kendra DeVries—Violin, Sarah Windlow—Woodwinds, Mary Ahrendt—Brass, Mr. McCarthy—Percussion, and Mrs. Timmons—Keyboard, had to play behind the set instead of below the stage.

Seeing the sky was not part of the play, it was the fire which

S tudent Directors Become Leaders

In spite of a small crowd, the Winter Drama Festival went on to be a very entertaining evening. The directors who lead this talented cast were Jared Arnett, Samantha Boone, Sarah Flory, Ryan Russel, and Amy Stepanek. It is important to have student directors because they get to experience leading and working with other students.

Winter Drama Fest consisted of six plays. It started out with a dance called the Muskrat Ramble. Then it moved on to a story of a baby that was being coached on how to be a baby. After that there was the Speak up Mambo, which was another dance. Following an intermission, there was a musical medley made up of five songs. Before the grand finale, was the play called, The Crazy, Mixed-up Island of Doctor Moreau. It was an exciting tale of a doctor who wanted to be in charge of everything. At the end of the evening there was a memorable dance from the movie Robin Hood: Men in Tights.

"I truly love the directing and doing the choreography. While it was a busy time, as usual, I loved making my ideas come to life in spite of the stress. I hope my casts enjoyed working with me and I hope the audience enjoyed all the hard work," said Amy Stepanek.

"At first I did not think anything would work out, with students having to take directions from the student directors. However, in the end it is amazing how it turns out so well. It was a fun and interesting experience," said Becky Chase.

"Working on Winter Drama Fest was both fun and beneficial. It gave me the chance to show off my talents while gaining experience. When I try out for future plays, I'll have a better chance at getting a part," said Kara Zylstra.

"I think that Winter Drama Fest was a very enjoyable learning experience. We all learned how to work with student directors, which they did an excellent job," said John Bell.

Li'l Abner performance Proves a success

"It was the perfect play to do in the cafeteria. It brought the best and the worst out of all of us." Amber Schreiner.

Spring Musical, Li'l Abner, was presented in an unusual place, the cafeteria. Despite the inconvenience of setting up and taking down the stage, the play was a success. It all began in the small town of Dogpatch, USA.

Dogpatch has a country inspired setting, that has an old-fashioned way of doing things. The conflict in the play began when senator Jack S. Phogbound, played by Mr. Mark Ladd, tells the townspeople that the town will soon be used for nuclear testing. As all of the townspeople look for a way to save the town, Earthquake McGoon, played by Jason Bakker, looks for a way to capture the heart of Daisy Mae Scraggs, played by Amy Stepanek.

Daisy Mae had ideas of her own to catch Abner Yokum, played by Adam Woolever, at the Sadie Hawkins Day race. Yet to make it harder for Daisy Mae, Abner had lost all of his desire for female companionship because of the Yokumberry tonic that his mother, Mammy, played by Becky Chase, made him take.

General Bullmoose, played by Jared Arnett, tries with unsuccessful attempts to get the formula for Yokumberry tonic. Meanwhile, General Bullmoose finds out that outsiders can join the race, so he gets Appassionata Von Climax, played by Amber Schreiner, to join and catch Abner to bring him to Washington. Daisy Mae and Mammy planned that if Earthquake helps to save Abner, Daisy Mae will marry him. Earthquake agrees and goes to Washington.

While he is there, General Bullmoose reveals his plot to kill Abner. Abner and Earthquake leave to go home to safety.

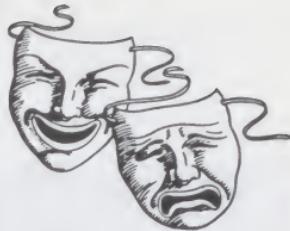

At Earthquake and Daisy Mac's wedding, Earthquake gets talked out of getting married just as Abner tries to stop the wedding. Abner then shares his feelings about Daisy Mae and Earthquake decides to give Daisy Mae to Abner since they love each other. Just as they are getting married, Dr. Finsdale, played by Samantha Boone, stops the wedding to resume evacuation of the town. The townspeople say that they will not go without their statue of Jubilation T. Cornpone, a war hero. As they try to take it with them, they realize that it is a national shrine and cannot be destroyed. In the end, the wedding continues, and Abner and Daisy Mae get married, and everyday life goes on as usual.

"It was a little odd doing the show in the cafeteria, but the cast really pulled together. We did a lot of things ourselves, finding alternatives for what we didn't have. I personally enjoyed playing a man, and I think the cast as a whole had fun," said Sarah Flory.

"Li'l Abner was so far the most exciting play I have been in, and others have commented the same for themselves, and I think that, even though we didn't have an auditorium, we worked hard to put together a great show. Sometimes, we in the cast would wonder, 'Would it have been any different or better with the auditorium?'

We became a huge family, being that we had our good times and we had our bad times, which we usually were able to make sure it didn't ruin our performances. We received our reward, it was the audience with their applause, laughter, and other emotions. They made it special to us. To all of you who saw it, we thank-you. We really appreciate it," said Becky Chase.

"Gimme a 'K' echoed in the ears of spectators during sports activities. Cheerleading season started out in June when all 22 girls attended the Universal Cheerleader's Camp at Purdue University where they competed each night against other Indiana schools.

Varsity squad received the trophy for best all around Varsity squad. Junior Varsity squad won the trophy for most improved Junior Varsity squad. Freshmen took home the trophy for their division in best cheer and chant. "It was a great week for learning, enjoying new experiences, and making new acquaintances," said Head Coach Rhonda Hester.

Freshmen squad attended and cheered at 45 games. Junior Varsity cheered at 44 games and the Varsity cheered at 43 games. Both the Varsity and the Junior Varsity squads cheered and supported the girls basketball team at five games. Varsity squad continued to travel with the girl's team throughout the sectional and regional games.

"The addition of seven male lifters has really been an asset to the already talented Varsity squad," said Coach Rhonda Hester. "The male lifters gave our squad a lot to work with, but for the most part it was worth it. I loved receiving compliment after compliment from other squads about the male lifters," said Natalie Sark. The school sponsors one of the few coed squads in the state of Indiana. No matter where they are performing, they attract a lot of attention because of their college level ability. When asked, Shanna Maple said, "With the lifters, we can perform a lot more difficult stunts and be safer. They have drawn more attention to the cheerleaders and have made them more enjoyable to watch." The squad has achieved stunts that even colleges find hard to accomplish."

Throughout the course of the year, the cheerleaders planned lots of events. During Sectionals and Homecoming the girls painted windows throughout the town. They planned pep sessions and led the class competition in cheering.

In the fall, they put together a large pep session that was open to the public and welcomed Mr. Hamilton back.

The girls sponsored two mini-camps which taught younger girls cheers, chants, and dances to perform at a home game.

From their role model involvement with children, to their support of athletics, the cheerleaders were a constant plus in the spirit of KV.

with humane spirit

“Supporting the major health problems of Erik Ramage, Mark Hamilton and Andrea Hyatt made members feel needed.” Gail Ooms.

"After all the tragedies that have occurred, we still remain a school full of spirit," said Jennifer Peo.

At the beginning of the school year, Varsity Club and FCA had fund raisers to support the swim coach Mr. Hamilton and his family. After Erik Ramage was injured in a car accident on December 21, Varsity Club sold T-shirts to help defray hospital expenses. They also backed the walkathon for Erik, and supported a cash drive for lung recipient Andrea Hyatt.

Due to the March fire, the Sectional pep session on March 2 was rescheduled for 7 pm at Wheatfield Elementary. The community pep session was designed to raise student spirit about the sectional game and to give a glimpse of hope over the fire damaged school. To encourage the basketball team to do their best, Spirit Club also painted the town of De-Motte with school colors.

FCA kept students busy by going to a Pacers game in the fall and ice skating in the winter. FCA officers also took an additional trip to a convention to keep the FCA club at our school. "If we would not have gone, there would be no FCA at the school," said Tim Jones, FCA's planning committee chair.

Teachers were the victors at the Varsity Club versus the teachers game. Varsity Club seniors showed determination to give the teachers a hard time.

“Farmer” image dispelled by name

“The FFA is a quality organization with contest that build leadership skills and teaches how to communicate with others around you. It is also lots of fun with all the trips we take,” said Steve Peterson.

Changing their name from FFA to the National FFA Organization was just one way the major national agriculture organization in the United States tried to dispel their “farmer” image. “FFA has a great deal to do with leadership and not only farming,” said Mr. Inman, the group adviser.

Throughout the year, awards were earned and honors bestowed on club members. Outstanding Project Award for the Best Supervised Agricultural Experience went to Larry Evers for his project on Dairy Production. Outstanding Officer awards were presented to Chapter President Ben Duttlinger, Chapter Secretary Amanda Dunlap, and Chapter Treasurer Dave Duttlinger. Ben Duttlinger was recognized with an officer symbol for serving as the District I Vice President. Star Greenhand Award went to Helen Hicks. Cassie Inman earned the Star Chapter Farmer Award for a member who held a chapter FFA Decree.

DeKalb Award for the outstanding senior based on leadership, scholarship and agriculture project records was presented to Ben Duttlinger. Mental Attitude Award for the overall member with the best attitude went to Amanda Dunlap. Scholarship Awards for Agriculture and Horticulture classes went to Laura Norris, Steve Koselke, Dave Duttlinger, and Steve Peterson.

Agricultural projects earned proficiency awards from the National FFA Foundation. Ben Duttlinger was the chapter and district winner in the area of Agricultural Processing. Chapter winner and placing second in the District in Beef Production was Ben Duttlinger.

Amanda Dunlap and Cassie Inman received the 50 Plus Award for selling more than 50 cases of fruit. In Forestry judging, Dave Duttlinger, Larry Evers, Steve Koselke and Steve Peterson received pins for placing first in the Area Contest. Dave Duttlinger also received a plaque for placing as the Top Individual in the Area Contest.

For District Greenhand Contests, eight members were recognized. Helen Hicks and Cassie Inman placed first in the Quiz Bowl Contest. Laura Norris placed first in the Creed Speaking contest. Placing second in the chapter meeting contest using Parliamentary procedure were Cameron Bales, Jonathan Hart, Helen Hicks, Cassie Inman, Steve Koselke, Jeff Misch, Sean Murray and Laura Norris.

At District Leadership, five members excelled. Steve Koselke placed first in Treasurer’s book. Amanda Dunlap placed first in scrap book and third in the Horticulture Demonstration contest. Ben Duttlinger placed second in Extemporaneous Speaking, and third in Leadership and Job Interview. Dave Duttlinger and Ryan Rients placed third in Ag Sales Democ.

In Chapter competition Sarah Flory received a plaque for being crowned chapter Sweetheart. Laura Norris and Helen Hicks won firsts in Creed Speaking and Demonstration, respectively.

As a group, FFA went on many trips. For their national convention, they joined 30,000 teens in Kansas City. Senior members took a trip to St. Louis. While in St. Louis they visited the Gateway Arches, Anheuser Busch company, the John Deere plant, and Case IH combine company. They also took a trip to Kent Feeds in Iowa where they toured through a research lab. When asked what they thought of the senior trip, Ben Duttlinger said, “This was the best trip we took so far.” Steve Peterson added, “It was a lot of fun having all the senior FFA members together for one last time.”

HA/HERO takes Exciting adventure

H“I had a great group of dedicated members! Through the year they learned it takes hard work and dedication to complete a project well.” Ms. Schroeder.

In addition to state competition FHA/HerO accomplished many new and exciting experiences. One of the things they accomplished was to raise money for Mr. Hamilton through a Bowl-A-Thon. Five members also got to go to the state FHA/HERO convention.

Members spent long hours during FHA week making the Hug Bugs, Buckle Hugs, the teacher packs, the valentine packs for the little kids, and selling their suckers. All these things were to be given out to the student body and staff. The goal for this week was to get the student body involved and aware of FHA.

FHA/HerO also made fruit baskets for shut-ins. This was to give a little warmth and love to those who could not get out during the holidays.

Their biggest achievement was that five of the members went to state FHA/HerO convention in Indianapolis. All five girls came home with medals for their proficiency event projects. When asked how they liked their trip, Chris Hofferth said, “I had lots of fun. We got to meet new people and experience new things. I think the best thing was trying to squeeze five girls into one tiny bathroom to get our hair and makeup done, and get down to our meetings on time. That was unreal.” Holly Estill said, “At first we were dreading going, because we didn’t know what to expect, but once we got there we were glad we went.” Tana Patton, Danielle McMunn, and Monica Tipton added, “Our trip was really fun. I especially liked meeting new people and doing things that I never had done before.” From the drive down, to the drive home the girls had a whole new experience. Monica Tipton, Holly Estill, and Tana Patton won gold medals for their child care learning pack. Danielle McMunn and Chris Hofferth won bronze medals for the club scrap book. The whole FHA/HerO Club won an award for extending their membership from last year. The member of the year award went to Danielle McMunn. Officer of the year award went to Chris Hofferth.

Foreigners step Into the Valley

"I am here because I wanted to see new culture, to learn the language, and to meet new friends."

Each year, students from all over the world travel to America to attend school. During their stay, they live with host families and are treated like a member of the family. Elena Mityaeva said, "I'm staying with DeKocks and I'm happy that I live with these people. I've found my new family in America. Tim DeKock reminds me of my Russian brother, Kacy is like a sister to me, and Pat and Henry love me and take care of me as if I were their own child. I couldn't even dream that I could be so lucky."

School in America is a lot different than in other countries. Michaela Kostecka said, "In my school at home we can't choose classes that we want. We have a stable schedule which we get from our principal. The only classes we can choose are foreign languages. Also, we don't have clubs and sports at school. We can take them after school as an after school activity in our city."

For Tina Pennanen school is very different. Tina said, "In Finland, we have a nine year comprehensive school. After that we can decide where to go. We can choose whether we want to attend high school or vocational school. Then there are colleges just like here. All in all, school is more fun here. School sports and games were a new experience to me, like pep sessions and all that stuff. I had a lot of fun in the powder puff game."

When the students were asked how they liked their stay in America and if they had anything else to say, their replies were, Marika Vourinen from Finland said, "Staying here for a year was wonderful. I liked it because I got to see many places. School was good. The teachers were helpful, and the students were so nice. When I have to go home, I'm really going to miss all my friends and my host family."

Claud Nielsen from Denmark said, "This year has been great, and I owe it all to the people that I've met. I can't say that I've met anybody with a hostile attitude, and I think that's very special. Many thanks to everybody. I've truly enjoyed being an exchange student here."

Tina Pennanen from Finland said, "I have had lots of fun here in the United States and at KV. Thanks to everybody, and I hope to see you all sometime."

Michaela Kostecka from the Czech Republic said, "For me staying in America, living with an American family, and knowing American people and their style of living is the best experience in my life. I'm glad that I had the opportunity to come here. I will never forget it."

Elena Mityaeva from Russia said, "I had a good time here. I think I will never have such a great experience in my whole life. I probably won't have a chance to come back, but I will remember my host family, my new friends, and five happy months I spent in America."

Taking a break from dancing, Aaron Klemp, Claus Nielson, and Paula McLainre pose for a picture which will keep American memories alive for the Danish exchange student.

Talent, variety give languages special place in curriculum

Bonjour! Guten Tag! Hola! was heard at the Foreign Language Club meetings. Activities started during Homecoming week when they decorated windows in the town and sponsored a float in the Homecoming parade. In December they set out on a one and a half hour bus ride to Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. On their way home, they stopped off in Crown Point to eat at Lous' Bon Appetit French Restaurant. Mrs. Carey said, "It was very interesting and educational. I think everyone enjoyed seeing how the other cultures decorate their Christmas trees, and almost everyone liked something about our lunch..." Around Christmas they brought cheer to the Little Company of Mary Nursing Home by Christmas caroling.

To raise money they sponsored a number of activities. They sold and sponsored a cotton candy booth at the Mr. Hamilton Benefit Carnival before the Powder Puff game. They raffled off two dinner tickets, a $20 gift certificate to the mall, and two movie passes. They were supposed to put on a skit night that was open to the public, but because of the damage to the auditorium by the fire, they had to cancel the show.

Foreign language fundraisers paid off for member Ericka Dreesen who was chosen by Indiana University's Honors program to spend seven weeks in Germany. Ericka said, "I was thrilled to have been chosen because I have always wanted to go to Germany. I hope I will learn a lot about Germany's language and culture while I'm there."

The club was open to anyone who could speak a foreign language, or someone who is currently enrolled in a foreign language class, or someone who has already taken a foreign language for three years. Sponsor was Mrs. Carey, the French teacher. Officers for the club were President Miki Banjura, Vice President Brooke Kozak, Secretary Brooke Spurgeson, Treasurer Jan Hart, and Student Council Representative Kathryn Kucharik.

Miki Banjura said, "Being President of Foreign Language Club this year was a great experience. It was exciting to plan the events and help make it all happen."

Surveying the fire devastation, Mrs. Carey attempts to salvage textbooks, computers and personal items from the water soaked wreckage. All three foreign language rooms were destroyed on March 1.

While driving the train in the Museum of Science and Industry, Heather Marshall, Barb Yaeger, Tomi Cook, Krisy Misch, and Todd Skinner dream of German, French, and Spanish destinations which they have discussed in class.

T eens help teens Stay alive; drive

"I think SADD is a positive group for this school because it makes the students aware of the dangers caused by alcohol and drugs, especially at Prom and Graduation time." Brook Kozak Conscience raising clubs SADD/PUSH and Interact joined forces under the leadership of Mrs. Price to encourage teens to "get involved" and stay "drug and alcohol free."

Just before Halloween, SADD members wrapped the school's trees with red ribbons and passed out ribbons to classmates and teachers as the world backed education in their quest to keep one more child out of the grasps of drugs and alcohol.

On December 21, Angela Padol donned the Grim Reaper outfit in an effort to encourage students not to drink or use drugs over the holiday weekend. By third hour, the very effective outfit was removed because classmates Todd Skinner and Erik Ramage had been involved in a tragic accident at the corner of 231 and 10. Reaper's activities had been a part of the national 3-D week as the country educated children about the Dangers of Drinks and Drugs.

Wrapping up the year, Sarah Kikkert designed a prom contract which required students to commit to not drink and drive. Banners flooded the main halls and Chrissy Sanders explicitly related drinking and driving statistics with gory details over the intercom before the release of school on May 19. All spring activities were in direct response to the national campaign entitled "Operation Pull Over," which pushed for more arrests and convictions of drunk drivers.

Interact, once a viable club, found its way to being "recommended" for disbandment due to a lack of interest. Instrumental in beginning the annual food drives, Interact sponsored three food drives for the local food pantry. A second fund raiser was for the Cambodian Mobile Library. The club raised $200 to help fund this project.

Getting involved and being committed were essential to both community supported clubs.

Journalists earn numerous awards

"Change inspires growth. From the fire to new computers, journalists experienced a diversity of change." Mrs. McKinney

From Jasper county to California, journalists were engulfed in experiences and competition.

Winning outstanding staffer awards, editor-in-chief Corine Tachtiris and business manager Allison Fase proved their Quill and Scroll Honor status at state and national competitions. At Franklin College, Allison Fase earned a first in ad design. The pair also won a Harvey award for their '94 indepth on Stress.

In April, the pair captured firsts in Sports writing and Ad Design at the national NSPA convention in San Diego.

Outstanding Staffer was won by Corine Tachtiris. Rookie of the year went to Leah Scharp and Becky Burkhardt. For her outstanding journalism work and in recognition of her scholastic achievement, Laura Fox earned Quill and Scroll membership.

Newspaper staffers met many challenges over the year as the new Macintosh 6100's and the fire kept staffers constantly learning and growing as a result of change.

Changes that effected the layout of the paper included a new ad design and a new front page design. The front page design reflected a "teaser" format which depicted a large photo and two smaller photos with related stories inside.

Heading the staff was Corine Tachtiris whose hands on method of leadership helped all staff members to learn about journalism. Keeping the paper financially sound was the job of Allison Fase. Both staffers were in their third year.

Heading the Movie review section was third year veteran Cameron Scott.

Learning about life, investigating leads, learning how to survey and interview were required tasks for all staffers. Through it all some excellent stories bridged the gap between writer and reader. These included a feature on "Twins," an editorial on "harassment," an indepth on the effects of alcohol and another on diet.

Pupils work hard To gain initiation

"I enjoy being in National Honor Society because it gives the intellectuals at our school a chance to gain scholarships and just have fun." —Jessica Stueben

April 12 marked the annual induction of members into the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. In order to obtain this honor, students must have had both a minimum grade point average of 3.7 and membership in at least two extra-curricular activities at school. The induction group was one of the largest groups to ever have been inducted.

The guest speaker at the induction was school superintendent Iran Floyd. It was Mr. Floyd's last year as superintendent.

Other highlights included lunch, which was catered by Tysen's, and musical entertainment. Sarah Flory and Amy Stepanek sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "Amazing Grace" and were accompanied by Mandy Apple.

For some students, leading a group of future leaders was an enjoyable experience. Brook Spurgeon, the treasurer, said, "I really enjoyed being an officer, and I had fun working with Kari and the other officers. Although we didn't get all of the things accomplished that we wanted to accomplish, we have high aspirations for next year."

The importance of membership in the National Honor Society was expressed by many members as they studied diligently in order to attain the required 3.7 GPA. Brook Kozak said, "Being a member of NHS helps you to concentrate on your studies by requiring a certain grade point average and encourages other students to work hard in the hopes of obtaining membership."

Following the conclusion of the induction ceremony, Nicolle

Peer Facilitators are trained to be active listeners. They hold several evening sessions and meet as a group once a week. The peer facilitators are there to help students who need someone to talk to about things bothering them. Peer facilitators are not counselors. If they feel the student needs help beyond their ability, they refer them to the appropriate adult.

What a student tells a peer facilitator is kept in confidence unless there is a sense of danger and possible harm to someone. If a peer facilitator violates confidentiality, he or she is dropped from the program.

Peer Facilitators are also assigned to a specific person to work with, such as a new student. Sometimes they send notes of encouragement or congratulations to students.

Pathfinders provides an opportunity for self-evaluation through speakers, music, and videos. Kris Mann from Hillside Community Church in Crown Point, Tim Hester from Grace Fellowship in DeMotte, and Bill Green Hood came to challenge their lives and look inward. Messages, like those given by the singer Carmen, seem to be clearer when presented through music.

Pathfinders were involved in service efforts. They sold popcorn at the benefit carnival for Mr. Hamilton. They also donated money for a student breakfast. Pathfinders sold t-shirts to be able to continue to support the community through projects such as the Hamilton benefit.

"It's great to get together with another group of Christians and learn about how to live a life that will please God," said Tiffany Bell.

"I think it's great that Pathfinders is allowed in our school. I hope that prayer will be allowed in school outside of specialized clubs soon," said Paula Zandstra.

"Pathfinders is a great chance for Christians to have fellowship together and to learn more about God's plan for us," said Missy Peo.

“Pioneerz teaches younger students about making the right choices concerning problems they are going to face.” Jeremy Orcutt Pioneerz consisted of 15 students who came from completely different peer groups, who would not even know each other if it were not for this group.

Joining with students from Rensselaer High School to talk about drugs, alcohol, harassment, and racism, members of the Pioneerz attended retreats at Camp Buffalo and gave presentations to elementary and middle school students. Pioneerz opened themselves to these kids so that they could prepare and protect themselves against these dangers.

Pioneerz went to the elementary school to talk about the D.A.R.E. program which stresses the awareness of drugs and their effects.

In September and April Pioneerz attended retreats at Camp Buffalo and got some very positive reactions. “One very special quality about these extraordinary students is they can tell the facts but not just from statistics but also from their own personal lives,” said Char Johnson. These students have helped themselves, each other and also others. This is one prime example of how all different kinds of people can make a difference when students all work together.

Council achieves honor rating

"This was the first year Student Council decided to open the Cougar Store which has been successful in raising money for the club." Jen Thomason

Action was the key word for Student Council. From daily visibility in the new school book store, to behind the scenes Homecoming planning, Student Council members were visible throughout the school. According to Sponsor John Michaels, Student Council offered students a place to be in charge of the business meetings.

Other members earned valuable leadership qualities as committee chairpersons. Student Council meetings met at a regular basis once a month. In addition to the first annual Homecoming parade, and the Powder Puff Carnival to the traditional Queen Coronation, Student Council kept the school hopping in the class competition, hall decoration and spirit challenge.

In addition to social activities, Student Council convinced the new administration to reinstate the one minute warning bell. They also volunteered to clean up a two mile stretch of highway. After selling candy, they donated the profits to the Riley's Children's Hospital. Acting on a suggestion from the students, the Council surveyed the student body regarding the Pledge of Allegiance. The vote was positive. Decorating the Christmas tree highlighted the holidays. Sectional activities and class spirit competitions rounded out the active club's participation.

Their activity also earned them the right to apply for Honor Council status. On May 16, Sponsor Michaels notified the student body that the Council had earned honor status.

Preparing to dribble and shoot, Jen Grizci anchors the freshman team relay competition. Sponsoring competitions was just one way that Student Council improved school relations.

Sunshine brings Everyone smiles

"Sunshine dance was really great. It is nice to have a club in which girls can associate."

Sheri Veldman

"I had a great time with my date Ben Turpin. The best part of the night was getting all dressed up and spending the evening out with my friends," said Dawn Albertson. The dance took place on December 17. The theme was "Always." Their annual cheese and sausage sale permitted them to lower the cost of the dance.

The club had a very active year. Daddy date night took place on February 16. For the evening entertainment, some of the girls competed in a talent show. The winners received movie passes. The Mother Daughter salad bar took place on March 16 and the Ideal Lady Tea took place on April 11. "It is very nice to spend an evening observing the girls with the special lady in their life," said Ms. Hains, club sponsor.

During the first week in May, Sunshine members handed out flowers to teachers for teacher appreciation.

Officers were Staci Sytsma—President, Brook Kozak—V.P., Bonnie Nannenga—Treasurer, Kelly Dunn—Secretary, and Margaret Strain—Student Council Representative.

Club sponsors were Mrs. Slaby and Ms. Hains.

S tudents lend hand To promote nature

"We have the best club in the school, and everyone should aspire to be like us." Mrs. Prochno.

Many of our lakes, rivers, oceans, and lands are polluted. The devastating effects of pollution need to be stopped. Many peers don't want to help to try to stop it. They say "Let someone else solve the problem" or "there is so much to do that one person can't help."

Environmental Action Club says that one person can make a difference. Headed by Mrs. Prochno, the club planted trees and natural perennial flowers. They also cleaned and recycled garbage like aluminum cans. During Earth week in April, members held candy sales, t-shirt sales, and a walk-a-thon to raise money for the club and to save the Amazon Rain Forest.

Other activities included going to Mrs. Kaluf's third grade class to teach the children the effects of pollution to the earth and the correct way to recycle. At the end of the school year, the club went to Turkey Run for a two day camp and researched the different species of plant life.

When asking the club members what they thought of the club, they replied. "Fun trips and helping the environment is what it is all about," Nick Leskiew said. "I like the Environmental Action Club for many reasons but particularly I like how the club helps the environment and tries its best to protect it," Jasmine Jones.

Checking out the new elub layout, veteran staffer Gail Ooms explains the changes to rookie Amy Chester.

Experiencing stress, Sheri Veldman questions the availability of elub pictures.

Stressed to the limit, editor-in-chief Miki Banjura puts finishing touches on her division pages which featured artwork from the design classes.

S

taff encounters Multi-Level stress

"I need pages. I need pages!"
Mrs. McKinney

Deadlines led to stress as 10 journalists interviewed, photographed and typed their way through the PRIDE year.

Sparking controversy, four seniors vied for the top spot. Coming out on top was four year veteran Miki Banjura whose goal it was to unite the school throughout the book. Starting with emblems of pride, Banjura recognized individual spreads with clip art designators.

Keeping up with her book's name, Banjura attended the Indiana High School Press Association Conference at Franklin College where the book won awards for theme development, artistic design, and sports feature development. Back at home, student picture day was set for September 13 and Club Picture Day on November 22 went smoothly under the direction of Banjura.

In sports Tim Jones worked collectively with Gail Ooms who headed the Homecoming and Powder Puff pictures and rookies Staci Sysma and Keri Spurgeon.

Stopping by for one semester was former editor Chuck Baisden who aided Gail's work on the senior section and Joe Lumbley and Matt Gregory who worked on ads. Amanda Koen, Ericka Dreesen, Chris Hofferth and Christina Jimenez worked on academics and clubs.

Rounding out the rookies was Tricia Cusak, Melanie Meyer, Amy Chester and Sheri Veldman who alphabetized all the underclassmen and teachers respectively.

With never a dull moment, staffers had to deal with the fire which displaced them for six weeks, and computers which never returned from the Computer Center Repair Shop. "The fire took our computers away from us and stole our ability to use our computer design expertise," said senior sports editor Tim Jones.

Through it all, PRIDE staffers continued to represent their school and their year as they were part of the ADVENTURE THAT CONTINUES.

Providing income and experience, jobs added many extra hours to students' schedules. Those who needed extra spending money for a spring break get-away, that new car, or college found that it's not as easy as it looks. The further stress of additional responsibilities played a big role in students' lives. In their precious spare time, they got more than they bargained for. Throughout the growing community, From the new Taco Bell, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Reuco, to the old favorites like McDonald's, Subway, and Threads, the town offered many opportunities for work and play. Trips up north to Southlake Mall provided more job openings for some and a place to hang out and shop for others. Outside of school, students could find whatever they needed to continue their adventure within the community.

Waiting for the lunch bell to ring, Andy Spenner, Angie Terborg, Scott Pendergrass, Judy Bakker, Jason O'Brien, Aaron Grandchamp, and Dave Dase discuss their weekend. Community jobs cut time from their weekend plans.

I believe in the supreme worth of the individual and in her RIGHT TO LIFE, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation, every possession, a duty. I believe that the law was made for man and not man for the law; that government is the servant of the people and not their master.

I believe in the dignity of labor, whether with head or hand; that the world owes no man a living, but that it owes every man an opportunity to make a living. I believe that thrift is essential to well-ordered living and that economy is a prime requisite of a sound financial structure, whether in government, business, or personal affairs.

Million dollar fire destroys 12 rooms

From the moment the blaze broke out, rumors concerning every aspect of the fire spread through the halls.

The speculation started with stories of the fire's origin. One rumor blamed drama special effects which involved the use of fire such as a flaming cape and a live stage campfire. Other gossip named electrical problems, a cafeteria grease fire, and even a bomb as possible causes. The real cause was a smoldering cigarette.

As students stood outside in frigid temperatures watching smoke pour out of the building, many voiced their concerns about fellow students as well as faculty members. Many were aware that several teachers and administrators had ventured back into the building. "I heard that Mr. Apple is trapped upstairs," Other word-of-mouth reports had both Mr. Apple and Mr. Willets hospitalized, supposedly suffering from serious burns and smoke inhalation. "I did suffer from smoke inhalation," said Apple, "but I was treated at the scene. It was really no big deal."

Immediately following the fire, several conflicting estimates of damage were reported. One of the first stories stated that nearly 40 classrooms had been completely destroyed. "Twelve classrooms were damaged," said Apple. "Some were damaged by flames, but many received water or smoke damage." School was dismissed for 2 1/2 days.

Suffering from smoke inhalation, Principal Phil Apple succumbed to assistance from paramedics. Apple was overcome when he reentered the burning building to check for possible victims of the fire.

Top Right: Within minutes firefighters from 10 departments responded to a mutual aid call.

Answering the call, Rensselaer's ladder truck was instrumental in controlling the blaze which destroyed the roof over the auditorium wing.

Using photographs, the insurance company, architects and school personnel quickly evaluated the extent of the damaged roof.

Removing the burned electric panel in the Foreign Language wing, an electrician carefully disconnects wires which were charred by the intensity of the fire.

Relocated by the fire, Pat Dean collects his books from the new locker bags in the gym's balcony.

Retrieving personal possessions from smoke damaged lockers, Mrs. Carey helps students cope with the devastation of the destroyed foreign language wing. Mrs. Carey along with Mrs. Masten and Mrs. Wiseman were displaced for the remainder of the year.

It Takes Guts

As spring rolled around, a collective sigh of relief filled the halls and the final countdown to summer began. Though exams created stress for many, daydreams of summer vacations kept students smiling. For seniors, Graduation marked the end of their high school careers and they realized the best was yet to come.

Just when we thought it was safe, the greatest terrorist act of the nation's history made students think twice about their safe midwestern life. The Oklahoma City bombing provided a rude awakening and proved that anything can happen. Students watched in amazement as the death toll kept rising. During breaks in the bombing news, the Simpson trial uncovered new developments. Jordan's return to basketball excited fans nationwide, with a new number-45 and a new outlook, he came out of retirement to help the Bulls reach a fourth championship. Continued...

With the school day finally over, junior Craig Robinson heads for his car on a sunny spring day.

As the clock counts down the last five minutes of the fourth quarter, Jeff Sampson guards a Lowell player to defend the Cougars' 17 point lead.

Working hard on his in-depth for the newspaper, Matt Gregory studies his references and types up his summary.

Homecoming candidates, Laura Szeman and escort Jeremy Orcutt, proudly walk across the football field.

Giving the thumbs up singal after his return, Mr. Hamilton thanks students, staff, and the community for their support.

Changes in the environment included the resignation of Iran Floyd, Superintendent, Mrs. Jabaay, special needs aide, and Karen Froman, central office secretary. Teachers affected by fire damage adjusted to the new room assignments while students found ways to get to displaced classes and trudged up to the gym's upper deck to put books in lockers.

Students watched in sorrow as the news coverage revealed that because of a long lasting battle against cystic fibrosis, Andrea Hyatt was moved to the top of the lung donor list.

Amazed the year was finally over, seniors realized that their friends and enemies were about to leave. Some were shocked to witness different cliques blend, as they should have from the beginning and there was an urge to make a statement before leaving.

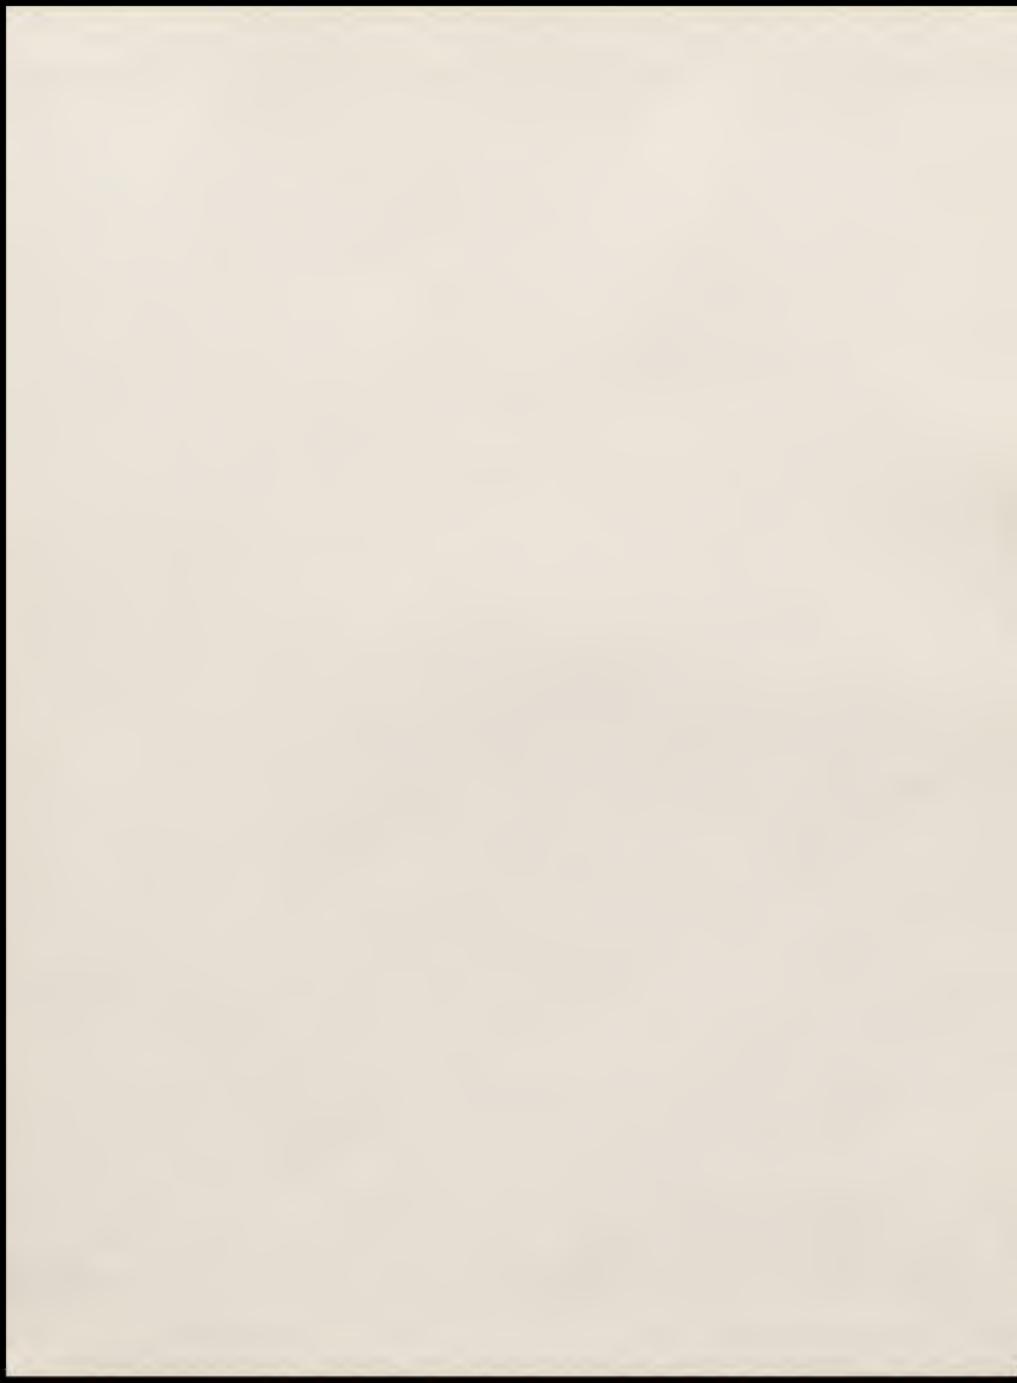

With the new "no shaving cream/balloon fight rule" students found a way to replace the tradition with something better. Whether continuing on here, or beginning a new adventure, students left with a sense of pride that we got what it takes to continue the adventure.

Resting after unloading his drum set, Eric Pullins waits outside for the Concord High School District Competition.

Cross country runner Justin Shaffer finished nineteenth in the Rensselaer sectional. Cougars failed to advance to the regional for the first time in Walt Prochno's coaching tenure.
